RALPH McGILL

Nothing 'Wrong' Or 'Immoral'

We have been treated of late to a most unpalatable menu of news concerning the doings of labor leaders who used the dues of hard-working men and women to purchase themselves luxurious cars and living.

We have heard charges that some public officials seem to think the fact of being elected makes them owners of the office and provides them with license to use public moneys as they please and to profit thereby when they can.

There are suggestions that there are members of federal commissions who cheerfully draw expense money from their offices, or the people, and at the same time from some private source.

Many state legislatures are in session and some are producing their usual malodorous fare.

Without much question, there is the greatest cynicism with regard to public money and public morality.

There are, here and there, reports of county and state officials and party or factional hacks forming "brokers" and "sales companies" to sell goods and services to the state. Nowhere is there much evidence of a dedicated effort to eliminate their many "commissions."

"There is nothing wrong with it," is a familiar phrase. And, to be sure, there often isn't. No law has been violated. Ethics, honor, and integrity may have been ignored. The taxpayer has paid through the nose. But "there is nothing wrong with it."

We have developed a curious bit of semantics. A deed which costs the taxpayers an exorbitant amount is regarded as neither "wrong" nor "immoral" just so long as no law is violated.

There may have been gross immorality in the awarding of a road contract, in a large state purchase, or in the shakedown of liquor dealers by threatening loss of license, but if there was no open and direct defiance of statute, those involved see nothing "wrong" or ethically immoral.

Indeed, "doing wrong" has come to mean merely doing something which is against the law and causes one to be arrested—if caught. So narrow has become the modern definition of immorality that to many it means only being caught in a raid on a bawdy house.

As for public officials and their hangers-on entering the office without means and quitting it well off by reason of having shrewd "within-the-law" machinations at the expense, finally, of the taxpayers, many such office holders consider this a part of "politics." Assuredly, they do not view it as either "wrong" or "immoral."

They continue as regular church members, beat the hymns most piously, pass the plate most politely, and unctuously anoint their heads by this exhibition of public virtue.

The transmitter, originally expected to function for from two to three weeks, was the more powerful of two encased in the 30-pound satellite.

The satellite was launched by the Army on the night of Jan. 31. If the batteries have gone dead, they lasted less than 12 days.

The Naval Research Laboratory, which has charge of tracking the satellite, said, "Today's Explorer passes over the mini-track system have produced no signals on the 108.03 band."

The observer noted, too, the hangers-on who serve as perpetual "brokers," selling road paint, paving materials, equipment, supplies and so on. They, too, had been doing business at the same old stand though governors had come and gone.

"I honestly believe," said the observer in a deep South state, "that if Thurgood Marshall, general counsel of the NAACP, could somehow manage to be elected governor, these same political lawyers, with influence for hire, and the vendors of materials, would all somehow turn up at the same old stand doing no 'wrong,' violating no law, neither toiling nor spinning, but doing very well for themselves—as always."

Jet in Collision Drops A-Weapon Near Savannah

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 12—A B47 jet bomber jettisoned a "portion of a nuclear weapon" off Savannah Beach after a collision with a fighter at 35,000 feet a week ago and the Navy is trying to recover the device, it was disclosed tonight.

The nuclear weapon was not assembled so that it could be detonated, the Air Force said. There was no danger of an explosion or radioactivity.

Tybee Island, the area in which the search for the nuclear weapon is being conducted, is about 20 miles east of Savannah on the Atlantic coast.

At the time of the collision last Wednesday the Air Force announced merely that the damaged B47 and its crew of three had landed at Hunter Air Force Base here after the collision.

The pilot of the F86 jet fighter that struck the bomber's starboard wing bailed out safely although frost-bitten from temperatures of 50 below zero at the six-mile height.

The Air Force has asked the Navy to aid in recovering the part of the weapon and recovery operations are now under way, said the official release from the Hunter base.

A Sixth Naval District spokesman at Charleston, S.C., said the Navy is conducting diving operations off the Georgia coast in a search for the missing weapon.

He said the Sixth District had sent two vessels from the Atlantic Fleet minecraft base to the Savannah area. Also sent were members of an explosive ordnance demolition unit.

"Following a mid-air collision in the Savannah Area on Feb. 5, a B47 bomber jettisoned a portion of a nuclear weapon in the Tybee Beach (Savannah Beach) area," the Air Force said. It said the collision occurred at about 35,000 feet.

"The weapon was in transportable configuration and not capable of nuclear explosion, hence there is no danger of nuclear explosion or radioactivity."

Officers at the base declined to elaborate. They said any further word would have to come from Capt. James J. Brady of the Strategic Air Command, Omaha, Neb. But Brady said he had nothing to add.

The B47 was from Homestead (Fla.) Air Force Base. It collided with an F86 Sabrejet from Charleston (S.C.) Air Force Base in the Savannah, Ga., area.

The B47 made what was termed a normal landing at Hunter AFB. Information officers said the tail section of the bomber was extensively damaged.

A Transmitter On U.S. Satellite Failing to Send

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—The Defense Department said today signals from one of two radio transmitters in the American Explorer satellite apparently have stopped.

The transmitter, originally expected to function for from two to three weeks, was the more powerful of two encased in the 30-pound satellite.

The satellite was launched by the Army on the night of Jan. 31. If the batteries have gone dead, they lasted less than 12 days.

The Naval Research Laboratory, which has charge of tracking the satellite, said, "Today's Explorer passes over the mini-track system have produced no signals on the 108.03 band."

Russia Has the ICBM, Freed Scientist Says

CAMP FRIEDLAND, Germany, Feb. 12 (AP)—A German rocket scientist held by the Soviet Union for 13 years declared tonight the Russians are not bluffing when they say they have intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Peter Lertes, 66, who worked with Prof. Werner von Braun on the German V1 and V2 rockets of World War II, made the statement when asked about Russian progress with guided missiles. Lertes was a specialist on electronic remote control applied to rockets.

He was taken to the Soviet Union in 1945 with hundreds of other German scientists and technicians.

Lertes said the Russians beat the United States in the race to put an earth satellite because they concentrated fully on their Sputnik program.

But he added that no German

Stock Market Declines Again

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (AP)—The stock market retreated today, posting its sixth straight decline, with much of the slump coming after President Eisenhower's optimistic economic statement. Major issues lost a few cents to about $1 but finished above the lows for the day.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed at $159.50, off 50 cents. There were 291 advances and 580 declines. Volume totaled 2,030,000 shares.

No FCC Whitewash, Angry Prober Pledges

By JAY WALZ

(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—Rep. Oren Harris, fighting mad over charges that a House subcommittee was ready to "whitewash" its study of federal agencies, promised tonight "the most thorough investigation Capitol Hill has ever seen."

The Arkansas Democrat took full command of the investigation that had been thrown in upheaval by a controversy over Dr. Bernard Schwartz, the subcommittee's discharged chief counsel. Harris, chairman of the parent committee on interstate and foreign commerce, took over formally from Rep. Moulder of Missouri, who resigned in protest to Schwartz' dismissal Monday.

"I will stand or fall on the success of this investigation," Harris said. In angry voice, he declared, "Whoever is caught must expect to suffer the consequences."

He said the "whoever" included members of Congress. With this statement at a news conference, Harris said he had subpoenaed Schwartz to appear at a public hearing at 10 a.m. tomorrow to explain his charge that a Federal Communications Commissioner had received "payment of money" in a contested television channel case.

The new chairman said the subcommittee wants to know "who the commissioner was, how much money was paid, and what for."

There were these other developments:

But, temperatures that dipped below freezing at midmorning forced cancellation of the horse races at Fair Grounds and the postponement until Saturday of tonight's scheduled downtown parade by the Carnival Krewe of Babyton.

The snow storm moved in from Texas and brought similar weather for much of the Deep South.

Hurricane-wounded Cameron on the edge of the Gulf of Mexico stirred sluggishly under about five inches of snow.

Snow reports filtered in from extreme Deep South—a trace at Natchez and Hattiesburg, Miss.; snow tonight at Pensacola, Fla.; snow an inch at Mobile, Ala., and flurries at Biloxi, Miss.

A Windy Day In 30s Forecast

Fair, windy and cold weather will linger in Atlanta Thursday but it may warm up some Friday afternoon, the weatherman said. Thursday the thermometer is not expected to rise above 36 after a morning low of 26. Friday's range is forecast at 22 to 42. Extremes here Wednesday were 23 and 38.

Albany, Alma and Valdosta reported snow flurries Wednesday night. At Leesburg, J. H. Radcliffe reported "the biggest snow there in 30 years." He said the flakes, which fell for more than two hours, melted upon hitting the ground.

Snow May Greet Ike In Thomasville Today

Snow may greet President and Mrs. Eisenhower when they arrive at Thomasville Thursday for a 10-day vacation.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the Presidential party will leave Washington at 11 a.m. and fly to Spence Air Force Base at Moultrie.

Snow fell for more than four hours in Thomasville Wednesday night and was still coming down at 12:30 a.m. Thursday. The flakes melted rapidly.

Ike Expects An Upturn In March

Economists Take A Dimmer View

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—President Eisenhower, in an optimistic statement on the economic situation, said today that March should mark the beginning of the end of the downturn.

In a speech tonight Secretary of Labor Mitchell predicted a substantial increase in employment by midsummer.

He conceded that present unemployment was "higher than we would like to see it." But he said such administration programs as relaxed credit, the federal highway program and increased defense spending should stimulate business activity and employment.

AT GOP DINNER

Mitchell made these remarks in New York at the 72nd annual Lincoln's Day Dinner of the National Republican Club.

In outlining accomplishments of the administration in the past five years, Mitchell observed that "employment, personal income, production, investment have all reached the highest levels in history." He credited the administration with a "successful program to check inflation so that the value of hard-earned wages should not be lost."

From other quarters, however, came predictions that the situation will get worse before it gets better. Some economists expressed doubts that the upturn will come as quickly as the administration believes.

WORRY BY JOBLESS

Eisenhower expressed concern over joblessness, which rose to 4½ million in January, and over the shorter work week in effect in some industries. He said he believed "we have had most of our bad news on the unemployment front."

"I am convinced that we are not facing a prolonged downswing in activity," he added. "Every indication is that March will see the start of a pickup in job opportunities."

The President issued what he called a fact paper showing what the government is doing to foster economic recovery. He listed public works projects and highway programs, new defense contracts, housing aids and softer credit policies.

"If other measures are needed, I will stand or fall on the success of this investigation," Harris said. In angry voice, he declared, "Whoever is caught must expect to suffer the consequences."

State Tax Cut Bill Doomed by Griffin

By WILLIAM M. BATES

Constitution Political Editor

Gov. Griffin said the magic words Wednesday that apparently doom the bill introduced by his House leaders to cut state income taxes by $20 million.

After several days of confusion over how he actually stood on the bill, Griffin let it be known that he does not think the state can afford the loss of revenue posed by the bill.

He outlined his position in talks with a large number of legislators Wednesday, including friends of Lt. Gov. Vandiver as well as his own.

As a result, the income tax cut bill probably will die in the House Rules Committee. Administration leaders hardly will push the measure in face of Griffin's position.

The sigh of relief that greeted this piece of information could be heard all over Capitol Hill.

It has taken many people off an uncomfortable spot.

A tax cut unquestionably would be popular with the people, and most legislators would be hard put to vote against the administration leaders' bill if it should come to the floor. But a great many of those same legislators privately do not think the fiscal condition of the state government could for long stand a $20 million a year loss in revenue without some new taxes or a reduction in essential services.

No one knows this better than Griffin, who now has the responsibility of running the government, and Vandiver, who hopes to hurl her 13 floors to her death. They say, when asked why he did it, Michael replied: "I don't know."

"She was a sweet, wonderful, innocent child," wept Mrs. Medaille. "But Mike had never shown any particular interest in her. He had no reason to dislike her."

Both Mrs. Medaille, a $75 a week key machine puncher, and her husband, whose take-home pay as a hotel clerk is $68, work nights.

The gray light from a gray winter day filtered into the small room as the mother, a thin fragile woman as worn-looking as the sofa she sat on, told about Mike, who was known in the neighborhood as a dimwit and a lollypop, then choked her unconscious and

Georgia Senate To Probe Rise in Insurance Rates

School Bill Substitute Is Expected

By BRUCE GALPHIN

A proposal to repeal compulsory school attendance appeared to be doomed Wednesday as the House Education Committee neared a showdown on the bill.

A member of the subcommittee studying the bill instead will offer the "McCracken substitute" that would suspend forced attendance only in systems ordered integrated by courts.

SIGN OF TROUBLE

Rep. William T. Bohenhamer of Tift County, author of the outright repeal bill, gave a sure tip-off that the proposal is in trouble Wednesday when he attempted to have it removed from the subcommittee and moved to the Rules Committee.

His motion failed 35-80.

Bodenhamer is chairman of the Education Committee but removed himself from the subcommittee.

In other developments on the bill:

1. Roy V. Harris of Augusta, a member of the Georgia Commission on Education and an original advocate of outright repeal, was reported to be satisfied with the McCracken substitute.

2. Rep. C. J. Broome of Bacon County, member of the Education subcommittee, said he thought the study group would toss the bill back to the entire committee.

BROOME TO OFFER BILL

Broome said he personally will offer the McCracken proposal as a substitute to the bill.

Time alone would make passage of the bill difficult. Even if

New Bill Aimed at Koinonia

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

The House judiciary committee broke a three-week silence on the subject of the Sumter County bi-racial farm colony, Koinonia, Wednesday by swinging into action with a substitute measure aimed at drafting more stringent laws against such communities.

The substitute resolution did not mention Koinonia by name but it was offered in lieu of a proposal by Rep. Jack Murr of Sumter calling for an investigation of Koinonia. Rep. Frank Twitty, chairman of the committee, said he knew of no other place in Georgia where the conditions mentioned in the resolution might exist.

STUDY PANEL ASKED

The resolution calls for an interim committee of three members of the House to be appointed by the speaker to study and draft laws prohibiting "persons, firms or corporations from engaging in the willful destruction of their own property so as to (1) encourage riots, tumults, unlawful assemblies and (2) to engender hate so as to inflict libel upon citizens and law enforcement officers of the state and (3) to defraud other persons out of money . . . gifts and donations on the basis of such covert, self-inflicted acts and injuries."

The resolution also asks a study of income and sales tax laws with a view to "closing any existing loopholes as respects the operation of farms by cooperatives."

PENALTIES REQUESTED

The resolution states that although the state constitution prohibits perjury "there are no criminal penalties for the same in this state and the laws of other forms of involuntary servitude are incomplete." It asks the committee to study and make recommendations on laws prohibiting and penalizing perjury or any form of involuntary servitude.

Court Issues New Order Against Ban

By CHARLES MOORE

The Senate Wednesday authorized an investigation into the recently granted fire and automobile insurance rate increases, backing up a probe ordered by the House last week.

Meanwhile, a second court injunction was issued Wednesday prohibiting State Insurance Commissioner Zack Cravey from rescinding the automobile insurance rate increase.

Cravey had called off the rate increases until he held a public hearing Feb. 26.

The Senate investigation will be separate from the House's, said Sen. Edward E. McGarity of McDonough, an author of the investigation resolution.

JOINT INVESTIGATION

However, Sen. Peyton S. Hawes of Elberton said he thought both groups would hold a joint investigation. Hawes also was a signer of the resolution.

The House Wednesday named an investigating committee that is predominantly composed of Griffin administration supporters: W. Colbert Hawkins of Screven County, Frank S. Twitty of Mitchell County, Robert L. Scoggin of Floyd County, Ben Jessup of Bleckley County and W. T. Jones of Crawford County.

A majority of the Senate resolution sponsors, who are likely to be named to the investigating committee, are Lt. Gov. Ernest Vandiver supporters.

TROTTER, ELLARD AND COX

In addition to McGarity and Hawes, they are William P. Trotter of LaGrange, Glenn W. Ellard of Cornelia and Julian H. Cox of Athens.

Rep. Twitty said he was going to ask the House committee to invite the Senate group to hold a joint investigation.

Both the House and Senate investigations call for a "thorough and complete study of all available information."

Railroads Win 2 Pct. Boost in Freight Rates

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today authorized a railroad freight rate increase averaging about two per cent on most freight items effective at midnight Friday.

The ICC action applies only to interstate freight movements. But the authority took note that the railroad industry is seeking comparable upward revisions in intrastate rates from the states.

The ICC said that if the increases which it sanctioned are applied to both interstate and intrastate traffic, this will mean about 182 million dollars a year in additional rail revenue.

Air Force Considers Scrapping Jupiter

Douglas Ready to Advise McElroy to Retain Thor

By JACK RAYMOND

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The Air Force was disclosed tonight to be considering dropping the Army's intermediate range ballistic missile Jupiter.

Two months ago, after more than a year of open rivalry, the Defense department decided to produce both the Jupiter and the Air Force's Thor. These are 1,500-mile-range missiles which have been earmarked for installation at European bases, beginning with sites in England by the end of this year. Sec. Douglas, secretary of Defense McElroy said in December that both missiles would be put into production although neither of the two weapons have been pronounced completely satisfactory from a development point of view.

Sec. Douglas

Earlier, under former Secretary Wilson, a department panel had failed to choose one missile above the other, when assigned to eliminate duplication in this field.

Disclosure of the Air Force attitude came with the release of testimony by James H. Douglas, secretary of the Air Force, before the House Armed Services Committee last Friday.

RETAIN THOR
Douglas told the committee he was planning to recommend to McElroy within two weeks whether more of one missile or the other ought to be produced, or whether one might be dropped altogether. It appeared he planned to retain the Thor and was considering dropping the Jupiter.

A memorandum by Wilson November, 1956, assigned combat use of intermediate range ballistic missiles to the Air Force. Even the Jupiters that are produced will be turned over to the Air Force.

Douglas said that the decision in favor of dual production was prompted by the desire to send IRBM squadrons overseas by the end of this year. However, he continued, more was known about the two weapons now.

TOO EXPENSIVE

"As we proceed with the development of both missiles and become better assured of having an operational Thor, the more my concern is increased that we not follow this program on a more expensive course than is necessary," said Douglas.

The Air Force secretary was urged by the committee members to delay his recommendation. Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.) and chairman of the committee asked him to wait "for at least a year or a little bit longer."

Rep. Hardy (D-Va.) asked whether the Air Force had taken over the Jupiter program "with the very definite intent of just scuttling" it. Douglas denied the allegation.

RECALLED RIVALRY

The tone of the questions recalled the tense rivalry of the Air Force and the Jupiter in developing intermediate range ballistic missiles. After the Wilson memorandum Col. John C. Nickerson, an Army research official, disclosed classified documents in protest of the decision with the consequence that he was tried, punished and reassigned to Panama. The Air Force long has contended that its Thor missile is superior to the Jupiter and easier to manufacture. However, the success of the Army in launching the satellite Explorer with a Jupiter-C rocket appeared to have strengthened its hand in this field. Army officials lately have said they were less interested in the Jupiter than in the new versions of the 200-mile Redstone. Their hopes are riding with plans for a Pershing missile which with a solid fuel is expected to make possible a range of 400 to 600 miles.

Tired and Melancholy in an Age Of Change, Sen. Byrd Will Retire

By WILLIAM S. WHITE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Sen. Harry Flood Byrd, a right-wing Democrat from Virginia, announced today that he would not ask for re-election at the expiration of his fourth full term next January. He is 70.

For a quarter-century in the Senate, Byrd has been leader and symbol of an old kind of genteel conservatism now all but gone from American public life.

He disclosed in a statement that when he stood for re-election six years ago he promised Mrs. Byrd it would be his last campaign. "Since then," he added, "she has suffered a crippling illness and is an invalid; it is our desire to spend our lives together at home in Virginia."

SON MAY CARRY ON

Byrd's decision to retire did not break or even significantly weaken the powerful, and unique, position of leadership that he has maintained for decades in Virginia politics.

It left open, for the moment, the question of the succession to his Senate seat. Many here and in Virginia believed that the dynasty in the end was likely to be carried on by the senator's son, Harry Byrd Jr., a member of the Virginia State Senate and a Winchester, Va., publisher.

Within the Senate itself, the prospect was that the chairmanship of the Senate Finance Committee will pass next year, assuming continued Democratic control of the Senate, to Sen. Kerr of Oklahoma.

SPENDERS VS. FRUGALITY

Kerr, currently the committee's senior Democratic member, is, at least in the comparative sense, a spender as against the storied frugality of his chief on the committee.

The obvious consequences of Byrd's impending departure were generally seen here, however, as far less significant than those of a more subtle nature.

For example, he has been, since fairly early in the Franklin Roosevelt era, a tireless and influential antagonist of the pattern of urban liberalism that for nearly three decades has stamped the Democratic party nationally.

In 1952 and in 1956 he helped deliver Virginia to a Republican presidential candidate, Eisenhower. Accordingly, the loss of the Byrd vote to the Democratic right wing will be felt in the national party and in the Senate alike.

AN ARISTOCRAT

Again, Sen. Byrd has been the intellectual leader in all the South of the policy of fighting racial integration in the schools that he has called "massive resistance."

His announcement of voluntary withdrawal had, in the Senate, something of the quality of a signal for the ending of an era.

A man of aristocratic lineage—the senator is a member of a colonial family famous in Virginia and early American history—his personal word has never been questioned, nor has the public honesty of his political organization ever been seriously challenged. That machine has often been hard-handed; it has never been accused of being corrupt.

Thus while his announced reason for retirement was universally accepted among politicians here, even among those strongly opposed to him, his friends gave additional reasons in private.

SENSE OF SADNESS

These additional reasons summed up to a sense of frustration and melancholy.

Byrd, it may be stated, has long been disillusioned with some aspects of the Eisenhower administration, which he had welcomed in the first place because he believed it represented perhaps the last opportunity for the vindication of the philosophy of conservatism in government.

Most especially he has been grieved and alienated at the administration's handling of the race problem, which he believes is being exploited toward the destruction of values which have made up part of his tradition of life.

Nearly all his career has been by necessity essentially negative, because he has been fighting a rear-guard action for nearly half a lifetime against what he has seen as an encroachment of undue paternalism in government.

He is aware, in consequence, not only that he has nearly always failed in the end but also that, because of the nature of his convictions, he has never been the author of a famous statute or national policy.

CONDEMNED MCCARTHY

Too, his economic views have often tended to place him before the public, willy-nilly, generally in the company of others, some of whose right-wing attitudes have been wholly alien to him.

Few have known that it was Sen. Byrd, in a denunciation of the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy's seeming acceptance of a slur on the loyalty of the Protestant clergy, who opened what became a successful conservative Senate movement to condemn "McCarthyism."

Again when, in the same period, an attack was made upon Mrs. Anna Rosenberg's appointment in the Truman administration to be an assistant secretary of defense, it was Sen. Byrd and Sen. Russell of Georgia who vindicated Mrs. Rosenberg.

NO EASY GOODBYE

Byrd and Russell held a brief closed hearing of the Senate Armed Services Committee, put their heads together, and dismissed the accusers with aristocratic and laconic contempt.

A liberal Democratic senator put the case in private for the Senate this afternoon remembering as he did a hundred struggles with Sen. Byrd.

"It will not be too easy when it comes time to say goodbye to Mr. Byrd of Virginia."

Move On, Tunis Tells 400 French

U.S. Offers Aid As Dispute Boils

TUNIS, Tunisia, Feb. 12 (UP).—The Tunisian government ordered some 400 French citizens to quit their homes today as anti-French feeling exploded into angry demonstrations against the bombing of the Tunisian town of Sakiet Sidi Youssef.

Crowds of Tunisians shouting "get out" and "give us arms" demanded revenge for the French air attack on the Tunisian village which killed 75 persons and wounded 102 Saturday.

NOT DEPORTED

The French Embassy said most of the French citizens ordered to leave their homes were in territories along the Algerian border. Embassy sources said the order did not necessarily mean the French settlers must leave the country.

Several thousand Tunisians demonstrated tonight at France's biggest North African naval base in Bizerte.

The United States offered today to do anything it can to settle the bitter French-Tunisian dispute.

U.S. IN MIDDLE

Diplomatic sources in Washington saw the move as an attempt to prevent the crisis from becoming a name-calling fight in the United Nations with this country caught in the middle.

However, State Department spokesman Lincoln White said only that the United States wanted to "assist in any way in helping" the two countries "reach an amicable and just solution."

White said the Franco-Tunisian dispute basically would have to be "worked out" between the two countries.

Expel Negro, Little Rock Board Asked

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 12 (UP).—Supt. Virgil T. Blossom asked the Little Rock School Board today to expel permanently from Central High School a 16-year-old Negro girl who has been involved in five racial incidents.

Blossom also announced he has suspended the girl, Minnie Jean Brown, for two weeks for her part in two separate incidents at the integrated school last week.

Blossom, who does not have the authority to expel students but only to suspend them, made the decision after meeting with the girl and her mother, Mrs. W. B. Brown, today.

In a letter to the girl's parents, Blossom said Minnie Jean had violated an agreement under which she was re-instated from a suspension Jan. 13 which followed a soup-dumping incident.

Blossom said that when she was reinstated, she agreed not to "retaliate either verbally or physically to any harassment by other (white) students but to leave such things entirely up to school authorities to handle."

70 on British Ship Stricken with Flu

LIVERPOOL, England, Feb. 12 (UP).—Doctors and ambulances met the troop ship Oxfordshire here last night when it docked from the Far East with 70 cases of influenza aboard.

The doctors said the disease, which broke out after the ship left Cyprus, was of a different strain from Asian flu.

Postal Plan Is Branded Too Small

Hostile Senators Quiz Summerfield

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12 (AP)—Postmaster General Summerfield plugged hard today for adoption of the Eisenhower program for modernizing the postal service.

But his argument that this would give the economy a timely lift drew Democratic retorts that it was too small an effort to help much.

Summerfield, while contending it would help combat the recession, also testified that the program was not designed to be a public works program as such. He said its main purpose was to modernize the department and increase its efficiency with new equipment and buildings.

Chairman Johnston (D-SC) of the Post Office Committee said more than this was needed to catch up with post office needs, and to help jobless people.

Sen. Neuberger (D-Ore) told Summerfield his program is so little it couldn't provide the needed stimulus. Neuberger said Eisenhower had presented it as a plan "to get the people off the floor."

INSISTS IT'S A BOOST

"Oh, he didn't say that," Summerfield replied. But he maintained it would give the economy a boost.

Under the administration plan, private investors would put about 1½ billion dollars into new or renovated buildings which the Post Office Department would rent. About 175 million dollars a year in federal government funds would go for modernization of mail handling methods. The program would last three to five years.

Neuberger, who is strenuously opposed to the administration's partnership program with private enterprise to develop electric power, said the post office plan looks like another one in which the government's share of spending would be extremely small.

"Yes," Summerfield agreed. "That is one of the most desirable points in it."

INVESTMENT CHANCE

He said it would give people a chance to make safe investments in government-leased buildings, help improve the postal service, and stimulate the economy.

He asked what finer objectives could there be.

Summerfield said that if Congress would agree to making the postal rate on nonlocal letters five cents, instead of the present three, the post office would get an extra 175 million dollars a year that would pay for the government's share of the program.

Under questioning by Sen. Yarborough (D-Tex), Summerfield said private interests can construct suitable buildings for around $20 a square foot. He said if the Post Office builds its own, the cost goes as high as $50 a foot.

His explanation: When the government constructs a building, the people it will serve demand a building that is really imposing.

Hungarian Gets 3 Months for Stealing a Kiss

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Feb. 12 (AP)—A stolen kiss, ruled a Communist Budapest court, is a violation of personal freedom punishable by three months in prison.

The ruling was reported today—two days before Valentine's Day—in the newspaper Esti Hirlap.

The 27-year-old personnel officer of a Budapest factory was hauled into court accused of stealing a kiss from one of the pretty young women from the wage calculation department, the paper said.

He had summoned the girl to his office, locked the door, embraced her and kissed her. The girl broke from the embrace and pounded with her fists on the door until another worker came to her rescue.

The personnel officer got fired, but the court suspended his three-month sentence.

Let's Place Reins In Proper Hands

Insurance Commissioner Zack Cravey showed his true colors Tuesday in a frantic effort to throw up a smokescreen around the bumbling way in which he has handled the facts pertaining to the on again, off again, on again raise in rates.

After blaming the Atlanta newspapers for the dilemma in which he has placed himself, Mr. Cravey said:

"We have reduced rates seven times since 1948 and despite the 1958 increase our fire rates are still 16 per cent less than they were in 1948."

Note the use of the word "We."

Mr. Cravey is quick to take his share of the glory for any rate reduction. When the shoe is on the other foot, the public hears not a mumbled word out of Mr. Cravey until the "vengeful Atlanta newspapers" uncover the facts to which it is entitled.

Why the secrecy? Could it be that the commissioner of various and sundry things is more interested in the political implications than in giving the public a look at both sides of the coin?

The Constitution is not attempting to pass judgment on the justification or lack of justification for the rate increases. That is a job experts should rule upon. Georgia vests the authority of granting or disapproving rate changes in the hands of a one-man dictatorship.

The over-all arrangement is wrong, dangerous and badly in need of changing.

This state should have a nonpolitical board of experts on the subject to exercise jurisdiction over the insurance field.

This business of select friends of any administration being able to obtain an insurance license for fee-splitting purposes, although they are not in the insurance business and have no intention of getting into it, should be halted. The law requires that applicants pass an examination in order to be licensed. In many instances it apparently has been winked at or ignored.

The insurance business is important to Georgia. It provides jobs for thousands of people and furnishes an essential service to the public. We want to see it grow.

But the hard truth is that many insurance agents, who live in fear of reprisal and will not speak out publicly, have said privately that they believe the one-man dictatorship is a drag upon the industry, that the "climate" pertaining to their business in Georgia discourages some of the nation's largest firms from constructing headquarters buildings here that would be tremendously valuable to the state's economy.

It's high time the insurance business was freed from the iron rule of a czar and allowed to breathe and grow under a governing board of persons more interested in the industry and in the public's welfare than in collecting votes.

Include Alaska, Hawaii In Roll-Call of States

In 1956 the convention halls of the Republican and Democratic parties reverberated with high-sounding platitudes and principles of democracy. When the smoke had cleared and the bombast had died down, both parties had nailed into their platforms planks calling for statehood for Alaska and Hawaii.

The Hawaiians and Alaskans are patient people. They are still waiting.

Tyrannical governments swallow up whole peoples and territories without their consent. Asians as well as the West remember the brutal Russian repression of Hungary.

The most effective blow the United States can strike for democracy is to demonstrate how, in contrast to dictatorship, a constitutional government makes the dream of free men come true by making them full-fledged citizens of a free land.

We should make that contrast crystal clear to the rest of the world by admitting Alaska and Hawaii to the Union. Congress should rise above petty partisan political considerations and grant statehood to these American territories.

Then when the roll-call of states echoes at the next political conventions in 1960, the names will sound loud and clear . . . Alabama . . . Alaska . . . Arkansas . . . for all of the world to hear.

Valuable Ally Working For State's Poultrymen

Dedication of the University of Georgia's Poultry Disease Research Center today will mark the official launching of a program geared to save poultrymen large amounts of money annually.

The need for such a project is demonstrated by the fact that immediately after the opening of the center in November its scientists were called upon to begin research on a mysterious ailment which struck flocks in Georgia and neighboring states. They have identified it as some toxic factor in fats which are added to chicken feed and now are working at finding and eliminating the exact cause.

It is most appropriate that Georgia, as the leading broiler state in the nation, have a research center second to none in combating poultry diseases which have been costing growers millions of dollars annually. The facility at Athens represents an investment which should pay for itself many times over.

Surely the House Will End This Vicious Evil

In the name of all that's decent, the House of Representatives should take action at this session on the Senate-approved bill to require a three-day waiting period for marriages in the state.

The House State of the Republic Committee has referred the measure to a subcommittee for study. This could be interpreted as a move to sidetrack it for this session. We sincerely hope this is not the case.

From every standpoint of morality, decency and protection of the institutions of home and family, the marriage mills that flourish in border counties are a disgrace to the state. Gov. Griffin is among those who have opposed this vicious traffic in human bondage, saying, "We want no Gretna Greens in Georgia."

Arguments in favor of the bill are so great that no further study should be required. It has been proposed at most recent sessions of the Legislature and each time has been defeated, killed in committee or otherwise unfavorably disposed of because of pressure from ordinaries, justices of the peace and others who profit from this marriage racket.

Perhaps no single measure offered at this session of the General Assembly has more potential for human good than this Senate-passed measure against quickie weddings. Unless the House follows suit, Georgia will be the only state left in the South with this evil.

That Old Hound's Tooth Has Unbrushed Look

It has been a long time since we heard any mention of the dental condition of the hound employed by the Republican Party in its campaign to illustrate the symbolic cleanliness of the GOP administration.

Republican orators, including the President, were wont to lift the corners of this symbolic hound's mouth, as one does a mule to show its teeth and age, and to proclaim the slogan, "Clean as a hound's tooth."

For a time there was a lot of scrubbing of that famous tooth. Two or three men were eased out of their jobs for soiling it. But for some time now there has been no exposure of it. We do not know if it gleams or has that dull look of the unbrushed bicuspid or molar.

Sen. Wayne Morse, who had a look at the records in the FCC case, says they reveal the administration is "honey-combed with immorality."

Maybe it is about time the GOP dental brigade put on their white coats and got busy scrubbing that hound's tooth.

Gov. Griffin's Flagship Flies Honduras Colors

That Caribe-line ship which operates out of Bainbridge, Ga., carrying, according to legislative testimony, the quite legitimate cargoes of rum, tobacco and preserves, flies the Honduran flag and is registered in that country rather than in the United States.

Georgians are writing in to inquire why the American flag isn't good enough. Gov. Griffin and brother Cheney, as stockholders, would be expected to have their first flagship operate out of the home port of Bainbridge and fly the American flag. Or stockholder Fernandez of the Dominican Republic might have insisted on his own country's flag.

Be that as it may, the people of Georgia are evidencing some curiosity as to why the line in which the governor is interested isn't flying the Stars and Stripes.

Investigation reveals that some lines, in order to avoid the higher U.S. taxes and the hiring of American seamen, register with Central American countries and therefore must fly their flags. Lacking better information one can only assume, on behalf of those making inquiries, that it is an economy move which causes the flag of Honduras to fly over the Caribe ship.

County Fee System Lambasted as 'Racket' That Lines Pockets of Sheriffs, Ordinaries

Athens—Your editorial about the abuse of the fee system of county sheriffs is very amusing and you all are doing a good job of exposing this racket which is carried on in almost all of the counties in the state.

I talked recently with a county commissioner who said every speeding fine costs his county money.

He said when a person is fined $25 for speeding, the sheriff keeps $13, the ordinary gets $12 and if the person is locked up for five minutes that costs about $1.50 turnkey in and $1.50 turnkey out. Then the ordinary gets $2.50 additional to turn in a report to the highway patrol. So the county loses money on the fines.

Naturally the sheriffs of this state are fighting the salary bill defeated in committee.

At every session of the grand jury in my county you see the same old faces who are either handicapped or recommended by the sheriff and each report of these grand juries finds the books of the sheriff and ordinary in good order.

Why not introduce a bill which requires published figures of each sheriff's and ordinary's income? I want to be a sheriff.

Power Transmitters With Solar Energy?

College Park—Since the usefulness of a satellite is limited by the life of a charge in the storage batteries, why is nothing ever said about converting part of the "skin" into the solar generator developed by A.T.&T.? It had been in operation near Americus many months before we heard of IGY.

Offhand, it seems the satellite is in bright sunlight 80 minutes during each orbit and in the dark only 36 minutes. Of course, only the nose or tail surfaces would be effective alternately during the most of extra time. Since solar energy is a "natural" for powering the transmitter of the satellite, there must be a technical hurdle to be overcome. If so, why not publish minimum specifications of "skin" and solar unit so that a million free-lance inventors can try their skills on effecting the combination?

'Let the Post Office Remain a Service'

Atlanta—The Constitution recently carried a letter from Armand May which should receive the attention of every citizen of the United States regarding the increase of postage on first-class mail.

As Mr. May stated the mail service was instituted as a service for the people and was not intended to pay its way nor make a profit but was to be paid for like any other service for the people.

People should protest this act and defeat it if possible.

Senate Journal Was in Order

Think what you may of ports and roads and rates and such, the Journal of the Georgia Senate is in good shape.

At least it was when I visited the upper house this week. Jim Gould, golden orator representing the Golden Isles, the Marshes of Glynn, the Victorian precinct on Jekyll and other coastal points, was on his feet. The courtly Sen. Gould was reporting on the Journal. He said "Mr. President, your committee on Senate Administrative Affairs finds the Journal to be faultless, flawless, clear and accurate, without ambiguity; lucid, precise, impeccable and correct."

JEST FOR THE WEATHER:

The construction worker high on an Atlanta building started down off the framework one morning early this week when the mercury was down around Attapulgus.

"Hey, you!" the foreman shouted. "Where do you think you're going?"

"Just going to get my jacket," the laborer shouted back.

"Where'd ya leave your jacket?" the foreman wanted to know.

"In Bermuda," said the worker as he hit the ground in a south-bound run.

LIGHT THE WAY: Marietta Fire Chief Howard Schaffer, as quoted by the Marietta Daily Journal, believes the fire department in the Cobb County seat has made progress since 1896.

Howard has come across a request from the then chief Charles N. Mell to the city council, like this: "I would also suggest that you have an incandescent light hung on the outside of the engine house so as to avoid delay in finding the keyhole at night when an alarm is sounded."

Reminds me of the two country boys in the big city hotel for the first time. One boy decided to have a look around the town.

"Lock the door as you go out," the other lad said. "But what if there's a fire?" asked the one with the roving eye.

"I wouldn't go," said the one who was choosing to stay.

The Christian Had A Needless Doubt

Can we believe in the divinity of Jesus? This question was asked by a man who has been a Christian for many years and who has tried sincerely to live according to Jesus' way. His answer was in the form of a question: If you do not believe in the divinity of Jesus, what do you believe about Him?

And he replied, "Well, I do believe that He was the highest, noblest kind of man. I believe in His humanity."

I pointed out that the early Christians had some trouble believing in Christ's humanity. Those who best knew Jesus know that He was not an ordinary person. The New Testament goes to great lengths to offer evidence of Jesus' humanity. The early Christians never doubted that He was godlike. They had seen in Him and in His works the reflection of God. Never before had God been so real to them. The early church theological discussions did not center on Christ's divinity. They never questioned His divine nature. But the early fathers of our faith were insistent that the faithful recognize Jesus' humanity.

So early churchmen spoke of "the man Christ Jesus." Jesus was a man among men who lived for a period of time in an obscure corner of the vast Roman Empire. Apparently He adopted as His craft that of a carpenter. Apparently He assumed certain responsibilities for the support of His family. We know from the Bible that He experienced normal human emotions such as loneliness, grief, discouragement and despair. For a few years He shared the varied experiences common to our lives.

But those who best knew Him knew also that within Him was a more than human dimension. They felt that He was Christ, the Messiah, who had been particularly anointed by God to bear witness to the Father's love and to reconcile wayward children to their true spiritual home.

Many proofs of Christ's divinity are to be found in the Bible. He walked along a wondrous road. A divine light radiated from Him. Some people point to His wonderful birth and others point to the miracles He performed. But it seems to me that the fact which makes Jesus distinct from all men and an incarnation of God is more to be seen in Jesus himself, the life He lived, the work He accomplished, the inspiration He imparted and the transformation which came into the lives of those who loved Him.

Powerful Forces Block School Aid

WASHINGTON—From all sides comes a babel of voices prescribing what to do for America's school system. Plans, programs, panaceas have been flying through the air ever since the Soviet Sputniks brought into sharp focus the deficiencies of our schools in training scientists, engineers and language students.

The bills introduced in Senate and House providing various forms of federal aid add up to many billions of dollars. And each measure has its advocates convinced that in this way, and only in this way, can the young be trained in the austere disciplines of science and mathematics and the nation saved thereby.

In the view of those who know most intimately the politics of the school issue, the very multiplicity of plans and proposals—heavily salted with the propaganda of a wide variety of interests—may result in stalemate and inaction. It is a dismaying prospect.

The critics of the public school system include those who are sincerely concerned over the frills such as "co-ed cooking" that seem to have supplanted such solid subjects as physics and plane geometry. But among the most vociferous critics are also many who have long propagated for cutting public education back to the three R's. They would have not more education but less.

These are powerful voices reflecting the attitude of the United States Chamber of Commerce which has carried on a widespread campaign in the past against federal aid for school construction. They express the concern of those who want to keep the base of school support where it is now—on the property tax, which is a diminishing return—rather than on an income tax or some other form of levy grounded in ability to pay.

In contrast to those whose ideal would appear to be the one-room schoolhouse of 50 years ago or more, senators and House members have put in a number of bills that provide for school construction as well as for stimulation through scholarships and other means. The administration's proposal is for one billion dollars for four years with no construction, the total for all educational purposes in the current budget being about half that for the preceding fiscal year.

Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts has put in a measure providing $1,500,000,000 for public school construction over five years.

But the issue of integration has already been raised by Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-NY) who, in his measure appropriating 600 million dollars a year for four years, provides that none of this shall go to school authorities that have not begun to desegregate. Javits engaged in a fierce wrangle on the Senate floor with Sen. Herman Talmadge of Georgia, who said that federal troops might be necessary to keep order in some of New York City's crime-ridden schools.

Thus our divisions are emphasized at a time when unity is most essential to meet a fundamental challenge.

Derail State Gravy Trains And Save Taxpayer Dollars

In the Brantley Enterprise

Now that the Griffin plan for building rural roads by plunging the state 50 million dollars further into debt has been defeated in the Georgia Legislature, I wish to submit a Pay-As-You-Save Plan for building rural roads. Griffin's plan would not only have sunk the state much deeper into debt but it would have cost the taxpayers about 30 million dollars more in interest charges for the bond money.

My pay-as-you-save plan could prevent the future state debt of 50 million dollars and also prevent the extra payment of 30 million dollars in interest charges.

Here is my plan in rough outline:

1. When the present Rural Roads Authority funds have been allotted and spent, let the state give priority to rural roads by allotting 20 million dollars a year for rural road building.

2. Allot the millions through the board of county commissioners of each county.

3. Allow 5 to 10 per cent of the allotted funds to be spent for maintenance of the paved rural roads, the exact amount spent for maintenance to be at the option of the county commissioners.

4. Allot the 20 million dollars each year to each county on a basis of county road mileage. This would eliminate the building of roads on a basis of political favoritism. No boots would have to be licked in order for a county to get its share of the rural road money.

5. Raise the 20 million dollars by saving at least 5 per cent in each and every department of state government. Millions of dollars are now being wasted in useless jobs, graft and political corruption. I know one weekly newspaper editor who is on the state payroll for $250 a month and I doubt that he has done six hours' work in all the many months he has drawn this "feathered" money. Also, there are reported to be 26 members of the Georgia Legislature who are on the state payroll contrary to the expressed and plain provisions of the state constitution.

By the plan I have hereby outlined Georgia would build rural roads to the tune of 20 million dollars yearly and soon have our country roads paved without saddling the state taxpayers with another huge debt, with back-breaking interest to pay on the debt.

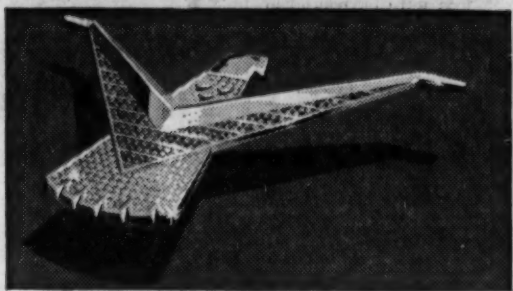

The State of Georgia now owes more than 300 million dollars through the various "Authorities" and every dollar of this debt bears interest which the taxpayer must eventually pay.

If a severe depression were to come upon the state, the devil would be to pay in meeting this staggering state obligation.

Let the slick politicians quit plunging the state further into debt and let voters elect officials who will nail the hides of the grafters to the barn door and give us honest, economical state government.

THE 4-PASSENGER THUNDERBIRD

The new 4-passenger Thunderbird abounds in luxury—yet it is priced far below other luxury cars!

Pure Thunderbird in spirit and performance, but now it seats four...with full fine-car room, comfort and luxury!

Utterly unlike any other car on the American Road, the new 4-passenger Thunderbird is the first of a new size and new type of fine automobile.

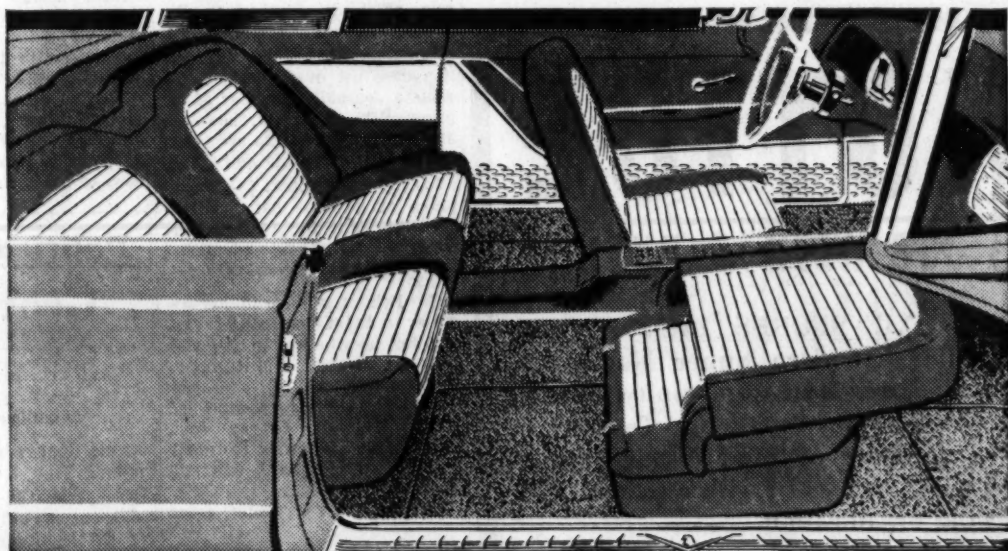

This straight-lined, low-swept jewel stands only slightly larger than the raciest car built, a mere 52.5 inches high. It handles and parks like a dream. Yet it gives enough leg, head and shoulder room to seat four varsity crewmen in lap-of-luxury comfort. And the doors are exceptionally wide—even in furs and evening dress a lady can step in and out with ease and grace.

Pure Thunderbird in design, this new 4-passenger beauty is pure Thunderbird in vigor and spirit as well. This means, as any Thunderbird owner will tell you, uncompromisingly brilliant performance whether on Main Street or on U.S. 1.

Ford engineers have lavished their most advanced design features on the new Thunderbird: New 300-horsepower Thunderbird 352 Special V-8 Engine is a superlative precision instrument, thrilling to command. New single unit body construction molds top, body and frame into one single, solid piece of sculptured steel. This remarkable advance adds extra roominess, strength and safety to the 1958 Thunderbird.

Conceived, designed and built to be the most advanced prestige car on the American Road, the new Thunderbird is so wonderfully poised, so uncannily sensitive to your every wish that you must drive it to believe it.

Visit your Ford Dealer. Let him tell you all about this excitingly different car... this brilliant new version of a great American classic.

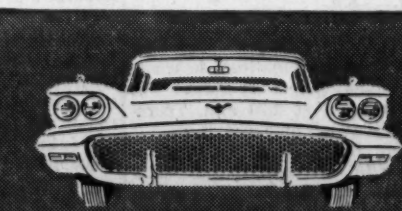

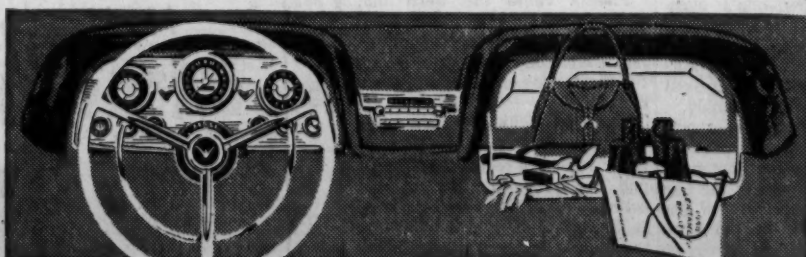

Luxurious comfort and full fine-car passenger roominess distinguish the 1958 Thunderbird. The exclusive "panel console" rises from the floor and houses heater controls, ash trays, radio speaker—and power window controls serving the convenience of all four passengers. And wide, glide-through doors give you direct access to all four individually contoured seats. Clearly, the new Thunderbird is America's most individual car for purity of line, for elegance, for vigor.

AMERICA'S MOST INDIVIDUAL CAR at a price far below that of other luxury cars

Brilliant new instrument panel has unmistakable sports car personality, safety padding and deeply recessed control cluster. Special feature: Inner surface of Thunderbird's glove box door is ingeniously designed as a convenient service tray!

With all its interior roominess and comfort, the new 4-passenger Thunderbird is beautifully compact. It handles, corners and parks with an ease and poise that is simply out of the question in the big, bulky cars.

More room than you need! Completely new trunk compartment gives you more than 20 cubic feet of trunk space—more than enough room to carry the average family-of-four's luggage on a cross-country jaunt!

ATLANTA AREA BILLS

Fulton's Legislators Ending Zoning Dispute

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Fulton County's legislators appeared Wednesday to be headed toward a settlement of their disagreement over restoring Atlanta's powers to issue special use zoning permits.

Rep. Ralph McClelland placed in the House a bill which gives the city the right to issue the permits and authorizes hearings on them before the joint Atlanta-Fulton County Planning Board and the aldermanic zoning committee.

SUBSTITUTE LATER

McClelland emphasized, however, that the bill will be substituted later by one which will include "safeguards" against improper use of the permits and will spell out right of appeal of aldermanic board decisions in granting or denying the permits.

The safeguard would be a provision which says that land uses granted under the permits must be in keeping with other land uses in the community, the legislator explained.

He indicated that Rep. Wilson Brooks, who has held up the bill up to now by saying he was undecided whether the permits were in the best interest of citizens, will go along with the new bill being prepared by Atlanta City Atty. Jack Savage.

AGREEMENT IN PRINCIPLE

The other two members of the Fulton delegation, Rep. M. M. (Muggsy) Smith and Sen. Charlie Brown, have indicated agreement in principle with the bill's provisions.

McClelland said at the same time he has asked the city attorney to draw a bill adding two more members to the Joint Planning Board to represent north and south unincorporated areas of the county. This would increase membership of the board to nine.

Residents of these areas have made numerous requests before the county commissioners for more representation on the planning board.

Meanwhile, a bill to set the Atlanta city primary date on the last Wednesday in September is still in the desk of Rep. Smith. Smith, who opposed the change last year but has consented to the change, indicated Wednesday he is in no hurry to pass the bill. "It won't take but a day to pass it," he told Reps. McClelland and Brooks.

The Fulton legislators were having trouble, meanwhile, in getting their long-delayed neighborhood voter registration bill out on the House floor for a vote. The bill has been approved by the State of Republic Committee but was not included on the committee's report.

Brooks said Wednesday he located the bill and had it sent back to the committee in order that it can be included on the committee report Thursday.

DeKalb's delegation announced that it will not introduce an annexation measure asked by Stone Mountain officials. Rep. James A. Mackay said Griffin administration leaders had warned the bill could "jeopardize the acquisition of the mountain property by the state."

Mackay and Rep. Guy Rutland said officials of the town had proposed annexation of an area to increase the town's size by four times. At least 100 property owners in the affected area have signed a petition opposing the move, they added.

Delegation members also announced there would be no bill introduced to provide a Doraville annexation referendum because of "overwhelming sentiment against" annexation reflected at a public hearing Tuesday.

Here is the picture on other Atlanta-area bills:

1. Ten measures already approved in the House were passed in the Senate and one local Senate bill was passed by the House. All these bills are now ready for signing into law. The House also passed five other local measures and sent them to the Senate.

2. A bill to make changes in the DeKalb County Court status, including possibly equalizing the two judges' $10,000 salaries with the $14,000 salaries of Fulton County judges, was placed in the hopper. Mackay said the pay change may be inserted in the bill later.

3. A bill to equalize the salaries of the DeKalb sheriff and ordinary with that of the tax commissioner and court clerk was turned in with the salary amount left blank. These blanks will be filled in if the delegation agrees on changing the sheriff and ordinary's pay from $9,500 to $10,000 yearly.

4. Bills to define the authority of judges emeritus of superior court and to increase the Fulton supplement for its superior court judges from $7,200 to $10,000 yearly were put in the hopper. If passed, the pay bill would put Fulton Superior Court judges' salaries at $22,500 yearly.

Fulton legislators said the increase was made necessary by passage of a state judges' pay bill last year which did away with allowances and gave a higher state base pay. This action resulted in a pay cut for some judges, they explained.

5. Sen. Brown introduced in the Senate a bill to set up a separate clerk's office for Fulton County Court and to restore tax arbitration law provisions which were inadvertently repealed last year.

6. Clayton Reps. Edgar Blalock and William (Bill) Lee introduced a bill to let Forest Park annex, subject to referendum by residents, an area on the town's northeast side.

7. The Fulton delegation decided to amend an East Point annexation bill to exclude land lot 22 in the 13th District because the five residents of the lot oppose the annexation. East Point concurs in the deletion, they said.

8. The Fulton delegation turned in to the clerk a bill to let College Park annex the portion of land lot 26 of the 13th District south of Roosevelt Highway, subject to referendum of affected residents. Effective date of the annexation would be Jan. 1, 1959.

9. The Fulton delegation introduced two bills to change penalties on Fulton citizens for failure to return property for taxes. The bill cuts the penalties on assessments under $10.

10. The DeKalb delegation killed in the Senate a constitutional amendment to give the county municipal-type ordinance powers and replaced it with a new bill with the same effect.

Panel Sends Home Rule To Senate

The Senate Rules Committee Wednesday voted in favor of a "home rule" bill and sent it out to the floor of the Senate for action.

The bill, entered by Sens. Charlie Brown of Atlanta and Marvin Pound Sr. of Sparta, had been held up in the committee when a member questioned if it could be entered this year in view of the fact that a similar bill had been defeated last year in the House.

COULD BE ENTERED

Sen. Brown said the state legal department said the bill could be entered.

The Rules Committee, in other business, first killed—then revived—a bill that would let the Georgia Ports Authority sell property on its own authority. At present, a committee composed of the governor, attorney general and state auditor must approve of the sale of authority property.

Author of the bill is Sen. Asa Kelley of Albany, law partner of ports authority secretary-treasurer J. W. (Taxi) Smith.

The committee first voted unfavorably on the bill. But reversed itself after Sen. Kelley asked to be heard on the bill.

DOCK PURCHASE

The bill is closely tied in with the proposed purchase of Central of Georgia Railroad's dock and Whitehall property at Savannah. The Whitehall property, adjacent to the state docks, is undeveloped but is considered an attractive industrial site.

The Senate Judiciary Committee voted out favorably the "honest error" newspaper libel bill that has already passed the House.

In other business the Senate passed 12 routine bills that would:

Label human blood according to race, revise the State Literature Commission Act, let judges put juveniles on probation, permit a study of the Georgia Income Tax Act, amend the teacher retirement system, license auction houses, fill vacancies of county school superintendents, prohibit shrimp power nets, let reciprocal insurers use a business name, affect dormancy of judgments, regulate and license livestock dealers, and set qualifications for chiropractors.

Representatives of both groups invited a Constitution reporter to a meeting to discuss the injunction. They said the increases in automobile liability insurance rates are sorely needed by the industry because of:

Increasing number of accidents, inflationary jury awards, higher medical costs and higher repair costs.

They claimed that the present average basic limits rate in Georgia is about $10 below the national average.

Superior Court Judge Durwood Pye ordered a court hearing for 9:30 a.m. March 14 on both injunctions for Cravey to show cause why the court should not make the injunctions permanent.

Fulton Rep. M. M. (Muggsy) Smith's bill to have the state maintain state roads through cities has become the first measure aiding cities to win committee approval in this legislative session.

The bill, also signed by Rep. Eugene Holcombe of Cobb, was given a "do pass" recommendation by the House Highway Committee. It was introduced after the death of measures to exempt transit fares from sales taxes and refund gas taxes on fuel used by city-owned vehicles.

The bill, according to Ray Nixon, Atlanta construction chief, would have saved Atlanta $161,240 last year on the 122 miles of state highways in the city.

It is known, moreover, that the Vandiver camp planned to offer some additional amendments to reduce present taxes even more. It is possible that the result would have been a bill calling for far more than a $20 million reduction.

Throughout the hassle, Hawkins and Moate insisted that politics were not involved in their proposal. They said the proposed cut—in the form of reinstating federal income tax payments as a state tax exemption—was right and needed.

Into the picture quietly stepped the Georgia Education Assn. which began raising questions about the effect of the proposed cut on the state's schools. By Wednesday, telegrams from local GEA units started hitting the Capitol.

Finally came the word that Griffin was moving to head off the bill. The Rules Committee met Wednesday without taking up the income tax proposal as scheduled.

Hawkins explained that the committee was tied up on Griffin's voter re-registration and poll tax proposal. But by not acting Wednesday, the committee is letting time run out on the tax bill—even if its sponsors choose to push it in face of Griffin's disapproval.

"I haven't changed my position on the bill," Hawkins said. "It is just legislation. If it is not passed now, it ought to be done eventually."

Eventually probably will be some later session of the Legislature.

Bill To End Forced Attendance At Schools Appears Doomed

the original bill were approved by the committee Thursday, it probably would not be able to get on the general calendar before Monday at the earliest. And it would still need to get through the Senate before the following Friday to become law.

Bodenhamer said, however, that he believes the bill is necessary and that he will fight at least for removal of the penal provisions of the existing attendance law.

In its business session Wednesday the House flattened by a 19-105 vote a proposal by Rep. D. B. Blalock of Coweta County to adjourn the General Assembly until after the Democratic primary in September.

The House also:

1. Authorized $500,000 to build five juvenile detention homes in areas of the state which now have no such homes.
2. Rep. Charles L. Gowen of Glynn County successfully moved to amend the bill to eliminate a provision allowing trusty prisoners to work at the homes. "We don't want hardened prisoners caring for boys and girls," he declared.
3. Rep. Chappelle Matthews of Clarke County said "the main idea of the bill is to keep them (children) out of jail." Many county grand juries support the plan, he added.
4. Principal opposition to the measure was voiced by Rep. Culver Kidd of Baldwin County, who said its cost would be "prohibitive" for the number of children the homes would serve.

Kidd reported that 67 per cent of the boys sent to the training school at Milledgeville come from 20 counties. In the past three years, 106 counties have sent fewer than five boys each to the institution, he said.

2. Failed to pass Bodenhamer's bill to outlaw advertising of liquor in Georgia. The measure won a 77-48 majority but fell far short of the required 103 votes.

3. Approved a bill requiring registration of used car dealers in the state's 23 largest counties.

4. Repealed a two-year-old law which allowed state and local governments to lease or sell parks.

After adjournment, the State of the Republic Committee unanimously endorsed a proposed constitutional amendment to make terms of senators and representatives four years instead of the present two, effective in 1961.

The resolution also sets a $3,000 a year salary for assemblymen, a $30 per day payment for interim committee work and forbids assemblymen to hold other state jobs.

Rep. John Love of Catoosa County, author of the proposal, told the committee its adoption would be the "best step we could take to make the General Assembly an autonomous unit."

Rep. Ebb Duncan of Carroll County noted that the proposal would put a new assembly in office in the middle of a governor's term. Love contended that such an arrangement would allow voters to pass on the administration's policies.

Merger of Iraq, Jordan May End Baghdad Pact

U.S. Debates Dissolution of Alliance To Bolster Anti-Nasser Arab Bloc

By RUSSELL BAKER
(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The State department is debating possible dissolution of the Baghdad Pact as one consequence of the Iraqi-Jordanian move toward a second Arab union.

Opinion in the department is divided as to whether the pact could be an asset or a detriment to the non-Communist world in the new Middle Eastern situation that would be created by a merger of Iraq and Jordan.

Some officials are arguing that the merger is foredoomed unless Iraq withdraws her membership in the pact. The other members are Britain, Turkey, Iran and Pakistan. Without Iraq—the only truly Arab state of the five—the keystone of the organization could be removed and its reason for being largely destroyed.

Without Iraq the group would even be without its name. Baghdad is Iraq's capital. And Iran would be left the only country not already allied with the West in either the North Atlantic Treaty Organization or the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Those who tend to favor Iraq's withdrawal argue that the Iraqi-Jordanian attempt to take a lead in the Arab Union movement must inevitably fail unless Iraq dissociates her self from the Western-inspired Baghdad pact, which is highly suspect throughout the Arab world.

At present, the Arab world looks to Egypt's Col. Nasser to fulfill its aspiration and he has taken a long step in this direction through Egyptian union with Syria. The merger of Jordan and Iraq—out of the Baghdad Pact—could also become a separate force for leadership among the Arabs, it is argued.

However, with Iraq remaining in the pact, the new union would be highly vulnerable to propaganda charges that it was merely a "front" for "western imperialism" and its failure would be insured, some officials contend.

Senate Unit Looks Into NY Schools

Will See If City Needs U.S. Help

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (UP)—A special Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency laid the groundwork today for an investigation of New York schools to determine whether the nation's biggest city needs federal help in fighting classroom terrorism.

James Sullivan, chief counsel for the subcommittee, and a staff of four set up shop in offices in the Brooklyn federal courthouse. They kept a close watch on the turbulent school situation and arranged interviews with school officials, police, teen-agers and parents of troublemakers as potential hearing witnesses.

644 SUSPENDED

The committee moved in after the year-long rampage of juvenile delinquency in the schools reached a climax last Friday with the suspension of 644 of the most unruly pupils. The suspensions came after a series of criminal outbursts in schools, including robberies, beatings and rapes, and the suicide of a principal who had been called to testify before a grand jury investigating schools.

Sullivan said the Senate is empowered to move in and help solve the crisis because a bill now is before it providing for the allocation of federal funds to help states and communities fight juvenile delinquency.

HOW MUCH AID

The hearings here, probably to begin late this month, will help determine how much federal help and what kind of help New York City needs, he said.

Sullivan, asked about reports that the subcommittee would investigate racial tensions and the possibility of racial segregation in New York schools, replied: "I am not of the view that the school problem is in any way tied in with racial integration."

Gov. Faubus Kills Charter of NAACP

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 12 (AP)—Gov. Orval Faubus today signed a proclamation which had the effect of dissolving the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People in Arkansas.

Faubus revoked the franchises of the NAACP and about 300 other domestic and out-of-state corporations because they failed to pay their 1957 franchise taxes. The governor was not aware at the time he signed the proclamation that the NAACP was affected. He said later that he hadn't checked the list closely.

When a newsman pointed it out, Faubus said: "There's an old adage that if the shoe pinches, it's their shoe."

Charters of the NAACP and the other groups were revoked under a 1953 Arkansas law which provides that all corporations must pay franchise taxes of a previous year by each Feb. 1.

Failure to comply, the law states, automatically forfeits all right to do business in Arkansas. The NAACP, which contends it is a nonprofit organization in this state, has never paid franchise taxes. Currently it is involved in five lawsuits filed by State Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett. The franchise tax issue is included in the litigation.

Under state law, the NAACP could get its franchise back by paying the tax due and applying for reinstatement.

Tory Falls To Labor in By-Election

By DREW MIDDLETON

ROCHDALE, England, Feb. 12. The Conservative government sustained an unmitigated defeat in the Parliamentary by-election here tonight.

Jack McCann, the Labor candidate, won the House of Commons seat, held by the Conservatives since 1951, by a majority of 4,530. Ludovic Kennedy, Liberal nominee, finished second, nearly 8,000 votes ahead of John Parkinson of the Conservatives, who finished third and last.

Both McCann and Kennedy had advocated Britain's unilateral nuclear disarmament during a hard-fought campaign in this Lancashire mill town.

NO APATHY

There was no sign of apathy in Britain's most crucial by-election since 1951.

Despite intermittent rain, 80.19 per cent of the 61,809 electors went to the polls. This compared well with the 82.21 per cent poll at the general election of 1955 when Col. Wentworth Schofield won the seat for the Conservatives.

McCann, a local alderman and trades union official, got 22,133 votes. Kennedy, until recently a television newscaster, 17,603, and Parkinson, a real estate operator from nearby Burnley, 9,827.

The Conservative majority of 1,590 in 1955 in a straight fight with the Laborites was replaced by a Labor majority of 4,530 in the three-cornered contest.

"MAJOR DISASTER"

Hugh Gaitskell, leader of the Labor party, saw McCann's victory as a "major disaster for the Tories" and said it was another signal for the "government to get out."

Laborite jubilation was modified by fact that whereas the party won 48.45 per cent of the vote in the 1955 general election the percentage dropped slightly today to 44.65 per cent of the poll. The Conservatives suffered a severe decline: from 51.55 in 1955 to 19.82.

Negro Liberia's Congress Makes Race Bias a Crime

MONROVIA, Liberia, Feb. 12 (AP)—Liberia's national Legislature gave speedy approval today to a law making racial discrimination a crime in this Negro republic. It is punishable by fines up to $30,000 and jail terms in some cases.

Convicted foreign companies will have their businesses closed for a third offense. Individual foreigners will be deported. Liberians convicted of the crime may be jailed for one year.

The Legislature passed the law within three hours of receiving the draft from President William V. Tubman.

The preamble to the act said certain foreign concessions are tying segregation and discrimination.

Newspapers for the last two weeks have been accusing Americans of the practices, naming particularly the Firestone Plantations Co., which buys most of the rubber produced by Liberians.

Another new law empowers the government to take any action to cover loss of revenue through enforcement of the antidiscrimination law. It provides for the government to buy all rubber from Liberians and take other necessary measures if Firestone refuses to buy rubber because of the new law.

The act's preamble said discrimination took the form of dismissing or refusing to renew contracts of employees who marry Liberian women and fostering racial discrimination in schools, churches, hospitals and business enterprises.

Unconscious 6 Years, He's Alive to Her

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 12 (AP)—"He's as alive and as dear to me as he ever was," Mrs. Becky Stowe said today as she sat at the bedside of her husband, Harold.

A few days ago Becky and Harold passed another tragic anniversary, the sixth year he has lain unconscious.

There have been few days during the six years that Mrs. Stowe has not been at the bedside of her husband. She prepares the powdered milk and vitamin formula that is his only food and feeds, turns and tends him.

At 38 Harold Stowe was an automobile shop foreman, Baptist deacon and Sunday school teacher when a blood vessel rupture caused sufficient loss of blood to damage his entire system beyond repair.

He wakes and sleeps, closing and opening his eyes, but is unaware of happenings around him. His wife feeds him through a nose tube every two hours and turns him to a different position at the same periods.

Until last August, Mrs. Stowe had a job working days and spending nights at her husband's bed. Now unemployed, she assists the operator of the nursing home where her husband lies.

"All I ask is to be able to support myself and Harold," faithful Becky Stowe repeats.

Griffin's Poll Tax, Voter Registration Bids Face Scuttling Move in House

A move will be made to scuttle Gov. Griffin's poll tax and voter re-registration proposals when they reach the House floor.

Rep. Howard T. Overby of Hall County said he will move to replace Griffin's proposals with less far-reaching voter registration changes recommended by a special study committee.

The study committee's proposals provide tougher qualifications for voting in Georgia but do not include the governor's plan for a bi-annual re-registration and $1 poll tax.

Legislation to carry out Griffin's plan is now pending in the House Rules Committee. That group may act on the proposals Thursday.

There is considerable opposition in the Legislature to Griffin's proposals—particularly the poll tax and re-registration requirements. The governor's plan is designed to curb Negro voting but would apply to white voters also.

"I'm not in accord with the governor's proposals," Overby said. "The Election Law study Committee worked 10 months on its recommendations and they should not be abandoned without being considered by the General Assembly."

Overby is a member of the election law study group and is a principal sponsor of the bills to carry out its recommendations. The bills are pending in the House State of the Republic Committee, of which Overby is chairman.

Overby said he will not seek committee action on his proposals until the fate of the Griffin-sponsored measures become clearer.

In addition to the poll tax and re-registration provisions, Griffin's bills would create a state board of registrars to set voter qualifications.

The governor's plan would go into effect immediately and would require the 1,200,000 voters now registered to pay the $1 poll tax by about May 1 in order to vote in the September gubernatorial primary.

The Election Law Study Committee proposed that present registration laws be changed to make a number of crimes and moral offenses bases for voter eligibility. It also proposed that literacy be made a requirement for voting and drew up a tough 50-question voter qualification test.

The committee's proposals, however, would apply primarily to persons seeking to register in the future while Griffin's poll tax and re-registration proviso would apply to voters now on the books.

Oglethorpe Blueprints $3.5 Million Expansion

May Break Ground in Spring
For $200,000 Gymnasium

By JAMES SHEPPARD

Oglethorpe University is planning a $3½ million building program.

University trustees Wednesday set in motion tentative plans to break ground in the spring for a gymnasium which will cost an estimated $200,000.

The trustees also discussed plans for a "master campus development plan" under which a new library, student center, cafeteria, dormitory, and science building would be constructed.

LONG RANGE PROGRAM

Dr. Donald C. Agnew, president, and G. Arthur Howell Jr., chairman of the board of trustees, questioned about possibilities of campus development, emphasized the building program is "long range" except for the gymnasium. Dr. Agnew said the overall construction program would cost some $3½ million.

Oglethorpe also plans to boost its endowment by $1 million, the income from which would be earmarked to support the university's instructional program, Dr. Agnew said. The university is presently endowed by $1¼ million, about $500,000 of which is a scholarship fund and some $750,000 is used to support instruction, Dr. Agnew said.

"The gymnasium or field house has the highest priority," Dr. Agnew said. "It will probably be two to three years before maturity of the master plan involving the whole series of new buildings."

FIRST MAJOR ADDRESS

In his first major address to Oglethorpe trustees, faculty, students, and alumni earlier Wednesday, Dr. Agnew mentioned in general terms "improving physical facilities including a new field house" as one of three goals for the "immediate" future. The other goals:

1. "Increasing the student body."

2. "Continuation of the emphasis on academic excellence."

Dr. Agnew, who assumed presidency of the coeducational, liberal arts university on Jan. 2, outlined "major assets" of the school as "a strong faculty of distinguished scholars, personal concern for individual achievement and development of the students, and a planned curriculum."

Oglethorpe's curriculum, he said, is so planned "that the gap between theory and practice, between general and vocational education tends to be bridged."

Dr. Agnew declared that Oglethorpe's "intellectual environment stimulates the student to think for himself and to develop a sense of values."

In discussing "responsibilities of education," he said students should "achieve a sense of values which will make life enduring and significant." He said students also should "feel some responsibility for the betterment of the state of man and for the development of tolerance and understanding."

Kiwanis Chief Urges 'Old Style Beliefs'

The president of Kiwanis International declared here Wednesday night that the world "is plagued with a misconception of human values."

Addressing some 400 Georgia Kiwanians and their wives at a dinner in the Biltmore Hotel, Park Arnold of Glendale, Calif., warned communism "will lead to wrecking of the afflicted nations."

He said communism and capitalism represented "a death struggle between the teachings of Christ and those of Marx."

FALSE ISMS

Arnold also hit "widespread belief in false isms," government bureaucracy, the nation's "increasing" divorce rate, "subversive books which have crept into our schools," and "four million sex-type pamphlets which every month lower moral values."

He called for "new foundations for better home environment" and "individual citizenship responsibilities."

"We must keep fundamental and old fashioned in our beliefs," Arnold continued. "We must perpetuate the social and political expressions of the Christian faith."

OTHERS IN SPOTLIGHT

Georgia's two former Kiwanis International presidents, Mark Smith and Hamilton Holt—both of Macon, also shared the spotlight. Holt introduced Arnold, and Smith presented Mrs. Arnold a set of hand-painted china.

Everett Millican of Atlanta, a former governor of Georgia Kiwanis, was master of ceremonies. Hiram Stanley of Columbus, the current state Kiwanis governor, reported an expanding membership trend among the 112 clubs in Georgia.

South Georgia Kiwanians will attend a similar gathering at noon Thursday in Columbus where Arnold will talk in his current speech—making tour over the United States and Canada.

Model Loses Jewelry Suit Naming Peer

LONDON, Feb. 12 (UP) — A jury of 10 men and two women decided today that the $100,000 an 81-year-old British nobleman had given to his mistress was enough and he did not owe her any jewelry.

The jury ruled against photographer's model Jacqueline Grey, 41, who had sued banker Sir Stratford Ralli for $33,600 worth of jewelry she claimed he had given her during their 15-year alliance and then took back.

The court also ordered Miss Grey to pay court costs estimated at about $14,000.

Miss Grey was not in court to hear the verdict, but Sir Stratford and his 67-year-old wife were present.

Lady Ralli, who stood by her husband and was his main witness, told newsmen: "I am very happy with the result. All I want to do now is to resume our peaceful home life."

Ralli freely told the court that he picked Miss Grey up in Piccadilly Circus in 1940 when she was only 23. Miss Grey said they met in an air raid shelter.

Rep. Carter Hits Griffin Road Letter

Rep. W. O. Carter will take the House floor Thursday to denounce Gov. Griffin for writing Hart County voters that Carter said the county "did not need any more rural roads."

Carter showed newsmen one of the letters which a constituent had passed along to him. He announced he would take the floor on a point of personal privilege to answer the letter and attack Griffin.

The Hart County representative is one of the 106 who voted against Griffin's proposal to extend the Rural Roads program by $50 million.

'SHOULD BE CALLED UPON'

In a letter dated Jan. 31, Griffin wrote a Hart citizen:

"As you know, Hart County's representative, Oscar Carter, voted to destroy the roads program and said, in effect, that Hart County did not need any more rural roads."

"I am giving you this information because I believe representatives who voted to destroy the program should be called upon to bear full responsibility for their official action."

Griffin vowed after his defeat on the roads bill to carry his fight to the "branch heads and the boardrooms."

However, it was learned Wednesday that he had told one representative letter writer being sent only to Hart County.

Carter reiterated Wednesday that he had not opposed rural roads but only Griffin's bill.

"It is my idea that what a governor cannot spend and does not need, he should not ask for," Carter asserted.

"Investigations show that the Rural Roads program has not been run properly and that the roads are costing an excessive amount of money," the Hart assemblyman said.

"My county has only gotten its share of the Rural Roads and it has its share to pay for."

Police Car Damaged on Holdup Call

A liquor store clerk was robbed late Wednesday of $163, reports showed, and a detective car en route to answer the call was involved in a smashup.

J. T. Hilley of Austell, employee in a store at 471 Peachtree St., N.E., said he had closed for the day and had entered his car to go home when a white man appeared at the window and placed a pistol against his neck.

Hilley said the gunman ordered him to back out of the car. As he did, the bandit grabbed a sack containing the money from his pocket and ran, he said.

Detectives R. P. McGee and Clinton Chafin said they had started to the scene when a car made a turn directly in front of them on Boulevard, N.E. A collision resulted.

You Never Can Tell

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Feb. 12 (UP) — Kern County Land Co. reported finding substantial amounts of calcium borate, a boron mineral, on California's Mojave desert. President George G. Montgomery said there is no present market for the mineral but it might in the future become a raw material for high energy fuels.

Let State Control Sunday Sales Here And Repeal City Laws, Mayor Advised

Legality of Sunday sales in Atlanta will be governed by state law instead of local ordinances if the mayor and aldermanic board follow recommendations of City Attorney Jack Savage.

The aldermanic board's police committee Wednesday night at Savage's suggestion recommended that all city ordinances affecting sales of any products on Sunday be repealed and that the state law apply.

Ald. Ed A. Gilliam, committee chairman, said existing city ordinances "Are a hodgepodge of conflicts and are unenforceable and should be repealed."

Committee action followed a protest by Atlanta ministers and representatives of the Retail Food Dealers Association against alleged illegal Sunday sales. Several pastors expressed concern that "Sunday may be lost altogether if the trend continues."

Under city ordinances Sunday sales of milk, bread and other items are classified as necessary, but—dealers are barred from "keeping the doors of their establishments open."

Following is the state statute governing Sunday activities, according to Savage.

Any person who shall pursue his business or the work of his ordinary calling on the Lord's day, works of necessity or charity only excepted, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor." State courts have ruled that sale of gasoline is a necessity, therefore, is legal.

Gilliam said if the state law is applied to Sunday sales, offenders would be haled before the criminal courts of Fulton or DeKalb Counties, where such prosecutions would take place.

Old-Shoe Comfort and Hymn Friendships Bring Christian Blessings to Camp Meeting

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

Constitution Staff Writer

EPWORTH-BY-THE-SEA, St. Simons Island, Feb. 12—Informality is the keynote of a camp meeting in the Golden Isles.

Folks wear their comfortable shoes to church.

A hymnbook may be shared by a gray-bearded layman from Rabun Gap and a teen-ager from Waycross. Both will "squeeze over a little" to make room in their pew for a visiting Yankee.

Nobody cares if his voice cracks or he isn't quite in tune with his neighbor on "There Shall Be Showers of Blessings."

Even the words from the pulpit sometimes have homely interruptions like "we need a little more heat, brother."

Bishop Arthur J. Moore and a distinguished visiting British churchman, Dr. W. E. Sangster, let the congregations in on their little personal jokes.

"I don't suppose that you sing our old fashioned Southern hymn, 'Amazing Grace,' over there," the bishop will say tentatively.

The visiting preacher's retort: "We wrote it over there."

DELEGATIONS

The bishop singles out from the congregation nightly not only dignitaries and visiting delegations but special friends like "the lady whose husband was singing the night I was converted 48 years ago."

He may call on his son, the Rev. Harry Moore, blind, crusading Savannah pastor, to sing a chorus alone. Occasionally he tells "all the ministers" to come forward, and there is a mighty surge.

Songleader Clay Milby of Valdosta exhorts, arm-waves and otherwise coaxes glorious singing from choir and congregation. They virtually shout on "Revive Us Again" and hum or softly intone "Day is Dying in The West."

It isn't all preaching and praying.

A sign on the Methodist Center bulletin board reads: "For rent, fishing poles—50 cents each. Fiddler crabs, two cents each."

ISLAND JUNKETS

Campers find time for junkets around the Golden Isles—to Jekyll Island to see stuffed bears and Mr. Rockefeller's China chamber pots, to Fort Frederica's new museum, to that honeymooners' and golfers' hideaway, the Cloister.

But sightseeing calls for a rugged constitution this week. The Marshes of Glynn are sere and brown. There are boisterous whitecaps, and chill winds penetrate the heaviest clothing.

Old campground markers and new painting commemorating the Wesley's sojourn in Georgia have clusters of visitors around them between worship services.

Inevitably campers linger before the wall covered with portraits of Georgia's Methodist bishops. On the roll call, including some early venerable bearded churchmen, are James Osgood Andrew, George Foster Pierce, Joseph Staunton Key, Atticus Greene Haygood, Warren Akin Candler, William Newman Ainsworth, James Edward Dickey, Arthur James Moore, William Turner Watkins, Marvin A. Franklin.

The Decision For Christ Is Yours

QUESTION: Can a person be saved by his mother's prayers?
L. I. L.

ANSWER—A man who has a praying mother has a most cherished possession. I can think of no greater heritage than that of a saintly, praying mother. I have thanked God over and over again for a Christian mother.

However, though mother's prayers may greatly influence a man's life and invoke the mercy of God on his behalf, it could hardly be said that a person can be saved by mother's prayers. Our decision for Christ is one that we must make ourselves. Your mother's faithful prayers may have a great effect on you, but the ultimate and final decision is up to you. This is said with no intention of minimizing the value and effectiveness of faithful, praying parents.

Once in northern Africa there was a Christian mother named Monica. She had a wayward son who was given to drunkenness and reveling. Before he left for a trip to Italy, she prayed all night that he might not go, but he went anyway. Later he wrote: "That night I stole away and she was left behind in weeping and prayer. And what, O Lord, was she with so many tears asking of Thee but that Thou wouldst not suffer me to sail? But Thou in the depth of Thy counsels, knowing the main point of her desire, regarded not what she then asked, that Thou mightest accomplish the greater thing for which she was ever imploring Thee."

Though long delayed, the mother's prayers were answered for that boy became the great Christian, Saint Augustine.

Judge To Hear Demurrers on Fulton Marshals

Fulton Superior Court Judge Luther Alverson is expected to hear demurrers Feb. 19 on indictments charging two former Fulton Civil Court deputy marshals with larceny after trust.

The hearing was scheduled at the request of attorneys for T. A. Poole, former chief deputy marshal, and Raymond C. Bowden, former deputy marshal.

Poole and Bowden had been scheduled to go on trial Tuesday on charges of cheating and swindling, larceny after trust and simple larceny.

The indictments were returned in connection with alleged discrepancies in funds received from the sales of goods repossessed through Fulton Civil Court action.

British Traffic Signs

Tied Up in Red Tape

SILSDEN, Yorkshire, England, Feb. 12 (UP)—Members of the Silsden council have decided to complain to the ministry of transport about red tape in local government.

Yesterday 16 officials gathered to inspect a project. Their investigation was only a preliminary. The West Riding highways committee must approve it. Then the ministry of transport must agree.

The project? Moving two traffic signs 300 yards.

'Where Did We Fail?' Ask Parents Of Boy Who Hurled Girl, 7, to Death

hood as "The Professor" because of his bookish nature.

"He just couldn't seem to concentrate in school," she said, half-defensively.

"He was an avid reader, but today anyone who can pronounce four letters is regarded as brilliant," broke in the father bitterly. "They built up that idea in his mind, until he began to feel he was brilliant everywhere except at home."

"You can't blame him on bad companions—he didn't have any," said the mother. "I didn't allow him to. Perhaps I held too tight a rein on him. But children who are allowed to run loose in the streets, seem to end up stabbing each other. I didn't want that to happen to Mike."

Mike, a stocky, imaginative, myopic boy, seemed to prefer the company of grownups. Police said that in the past he had come to confess to them crimes that existed only in his own imagination.

Mrs. Medaille disclosed that Mike took $150 of her household money—including the rent—a month ago and ran away to Florida. Picked up later by police at Fort Pierce, Fla., he said a sailor in Key West had jumped from behind a bush, hit him over the head and taken his money.

"I had to borrow the money to bring him home," said his mother. After Mike was expelled from parochial school for truancy and failing in three subjects, school authorities suggested he be taken to a psychiatrist.

"But they didn't say what was wrong with him," she said. "Only that he didn't get along with the other boys."

"We couldn't afford to take him to a private psychiatrist, and I was told that if he went to a public clinic he would ever afterward be branded as a nut."

"So I decided to keep him at home until this point in his adolescence was past. He had never really harmed anyone, or been violent."

"He was irresponsible and erratic," agreed her husband, a slim, small man bewildered by his son's arrest. "He was irresponsible and erratic but there was nothing to indicate he was violent."

"The only thing Mike was crazy about was fishing," continued the mother. "He liked to catch sharks. I used to open the refrigerator, and see the baby green eyes of a two-foot shark staring out at me."

"Mike was sloppy and lazy, but is that insanity? He seemed just like any other miserable-feeling teen-ager. He has his warts, but they're all warty at that age."

"But he was really trying to make good—to concentrate more. Yesterday he helped me clean the house. Just before I went to work, he left the house and—"

She left the sentence unfinished, paused, and her thoughts turned to her bereft neighbors—the Hegmanns.

"I would like to help pay the funeral expenses," she said. "I could borrow the money."

"They have eight children and only the husband works. They're poor poor; we're only medium poor."

"But what possible comfort can I give that mother? I can't go near her. I tried to be a good mother, and foresee things, but how could I foresee a thing like this?"

Her own small children, playing on the floor, looked up as Mrs. Medaille pushed a thin lock of hair away from her tired forehead, and asked the question that many parents today ask:

"What in the world can I do?"

How do you know that something has gone wrong—really wrong—with a boy? What is the sign? My boy did nothing that a thousand other mischievous boys haven't done who turned out to be fine men."

A detective said that Mike, when asked why he had played hooky, replied: "When there are eight children in the house and both your mother and father are working, somebody has to take care of the kids."

Magistrate Creel, in committing Mike to Bellevue, commented: "The teachers should have brought the boy's action to the attention of the proper authorities. The whole wretched matter could possibly have been avoided."

Ike Sees March Upturn; Economists Disagree

I assure you they will be proposed and in time," Eisenhower declared.

As one means of improving the economy, Eisenhower unveiled Tuesday a two-billion-dollar program for modernization of post office buildings and equipment during the next three to five years.

Postmaster General Summerfield outlined the plan today to the Senate Post Office Committee where some Democrats criticized it as inadequate to stimulate the economy (Story on Page 3.)

Several New York economists took a dimmer view of the situation than did the President.

"I have the fear it isn't going to be that easy," said Dr. Jules Bogen of New York University. "Our economy has been weakened by a very prolonged boom and by great increases in debt."

Retail economist A. W. Zeldman said he figures the low point in business will be reached within the next several months. "However, the upturn will not be as rapid as in 1954," he added. "This will be especially true as regards employment."

An economist for the Hanover Bank and New York University, Dr. Marcus Nadler, declared that "so far the government has been talking but not doing anything."

He said he doubted that manufacturing employment would rise next month. Eisenhower gave two reasons for his confidence that the economy will snap back later this year. "First, it is my conviction that the underlying forces of growth remain strong and undiminished," he said. "As a nation, we must provide the needs of a population growing at the rate of three million a year."

Second, he said, the firm policy of the government is to "foster this recovery in every sound way. I am making sure that we will go forward on every practical avenue of action."

Eisenhower said the administration's fight against the recession includes "action in recent months by the Federal Reserve System to ease credit, with dramatic results already achieved in greater availability of credit and lower borrowing costs."

"Steps have been taken, going back to last August, to stimulate homebuilding," he continued. Government antirecession moves also include stepped-up expenditures on the national highway building program, an increase in activity under the urban renewal program, and a sharp increase in the first half of this year in the rate at which defense procurement contracts will be placed with private industry, he said.

"In all these matters of government policy," the President concluded, "it is well to remember that with an economy as complex as ours, it is necessary not only to avoid the taking of wrong steps but confidently take the right ones. This we propose to do."

ments today in efforts of the special subcommittee on legislative oversight to carry out its $250,000 project aimed at finding out whether the FCC and other big government regulatory agencies are doing the work Congress delegated them to do:

1. Harris retrieved files that had been in the custody of Sen. Morse since midnight on Monday. The Oregon Democrat explained he had held them at his home only for "safekeeping."

2. Morse said he would introduce a resolution tomorrow calling for a separate inquiry of the federal agencies.

3. Speaker Sam Rayburn agreed with Harris that the House subcommittee should continue the "real thorough" investigation now under way.

NEW LOCK

4. Schwartz found a new lock on the door of his office, and removed his personal belongings under surveillance of a former staff associate.

5. G. T. Baker, president of National Airlines, said in a letter to Harris, that his company did not ask or get help from Richard A. Mack, a member of FCC, or Col. George Gordon Moore, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, in winning a television license for a subsidiary.

Baker noted newspaper stories attributing to Schwartz that Moore "helped swing the FCC award of a Miami TV channel to a subsidiary of National Airlines, Inc., and that there are serious charges against FCC commissioner Mack, including one regarding the FCC award" to the airline's subsidiary.

A MAJOR CONCERN

A transcript, made available today, showed that the Miami channel 10 case, involving commissioner Mack, was a major concern of the subcommittee during its secret questioning of Schwartz yesterday.

Schwartz testified, the transcript read, that the files he turned over to Morse did not contain the documents relating to Mack or the channel 10 case. These papers he said he had turned over to the subcommittee himself yesterday morning.

The case Schwartz will be questioned about tomorrow involves the FCC award of TV Channel 10 in Miami, Fla. The commission reversed its examiner's recommendation in granting the license to the National Airline's subsidiary.

Harris was plainly angered when he faced reporters after an afternoon closed meeting of the subcommittee to discuss calling Schwartz to the stand tomorrow. He denounced the "dirty in-situations and accusation" that had appeared against him in newspapers. He took particular exception to an editorial in this morning's Washington Post and Times Herald entitled "Harris On the Spot."

"I'm not on the spot at all," he declared. "I have a responsibility—a grave responsibility. I have never run from a real job, and I'm not fixing to run from this one."

why Ancient Age can say:

"IF YOU CAN
BOURBON
...BUY IT!"

All we distill is Kentucky straight bourbon. We know that bourbon of the finest quality requires choice grains. That's all we use. We know it calls for the greatest skill in distilling. The men who guide the making of Ancient Age are the most experienced in the industry. And it takes lots of time. That's why we wait six full years for careful aging to bring the quality ingredients to their peak of maturity.

And to safeguard the uniform quality of Ancient Age, we distill it at one place only... at the Ancient Age distillery in Frankfort, Kentucky... the heart of the bourbon country. Nothing has been spared to make Ancient Age the greatest bourbon of them all. Try it tonight. After one taste, you'll understand why we can make the challenge: "If you can find a better bourbon... buy it!"

Go-Ahead Given Tech A-Projects

The Georgia Board of Regents Wednesday gave the go-ahead on numerous construction projects at state institutions, including nuclear-age projects at Georgia Tech in Atlanta.

The board tentatively assigned Robert and Co. of Atlanta the job as architects for the nuclear reactor building at Tech, but said it would not be financially responsible until money from the state and federal governments is received.

It authorized the building and grounds department of the University System to accept the lowest and best bid for a radio-isotopes building, also scheduled for the Tech campus.

$190,000 ALLOCATED

The regents allocated $190,000 after approving preliminary plans for a rural life building at Abraham Baldwin College at Tifton and $300,000 for a library at Albany State College for Negroes. It added $52,500 to $119,000 in insurance money to replace the practice school at Albany State, destroyed by fire last year.

The regents put up $400,000 toward construction of a dining hall and campus center at the Statesboro Teachers' College and called on the institution to raise another $175,000. Bids for the construction have exceeded state estimates.

A total of $38,500 was allocated Georgia State College in Atlanta for purchase of laboratory equipment to be used in new science degree courses in chemistry, physics and biology.

MEDICAL COLLEGE

The regents authorized the medical college at Augusta to negotiate with Augusta officials on an exchange of land near hospitals, to the mutual advantage of both. The regents operate University Hospital and the city controls the Eugene Talmadge Memorial Hospital.

Approval was given to establishment of doctor of philosophy degrees at the University of Georgia in Athens in the fields of animal nutrition, bacteriology, food technology and dairy manufacturing, effective Sept. 1. The regents also approved a request by Dr. J. Ralph Thaxton, president of Valdosta State College, that national fraternities and sororities be permitted to establish chapters at the Valdosta school.

'Y' Assembly To Convene In 3 Weeks

About 700 youth legislators from Georgia will convene in Atlanta March 6 for the opening of the 13th annual State YMCA Youth Assembly in the State Capitol.

The 700 Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y members will become state senators, representatives and officials for three days for an experience in state government.

Forty bills have been placed on the books by the young Georgians for consideration, debate and action during this three-day period. The rules and regulations for the General Assembly will be followed until the bills have either passed or been defeated by the junior lawmakers.

Wheeler Bryant of Tifton will serve this year's assembly as gov-

Paving, Sanitation Bids Of $250,000 Examined

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Bids on more than $250,000 worth of city improvements, equipment and supplies have been opened or awarded by the aldermanic board's purchasing committee.

Topping the list in value are eight baby bond street paving projects costing $83,000; the second group of lateral sewers and outfalls costing $48,721, and garbage trucks and other supplies for sanitary department costing some $55,000. Other items for various other city divisions pushed the total to more than $250,000.

McIntosh Paving Co. was apparent low bidder on five of the eight baby bond projects, asking $9,943 for Hadden Hall road, NW, from Castlegate drive 1.143 feet northeast and north; $7,476 for Castlegate drive, NW, from West Paces Ferry road 253 feet north; $6,385 for Montee drive, NW, from Mango circle 800 feet north; $5,871 for Dumbarten drive, NW, from Castlegate drive 698 feet west and north, and $4,239 for Kings way, NW, from Paces Valley road to Hadden Hall road. MacDougall-Warren, Inc., was apparent low bidder on two of the projects, asking $19,343 for Mango circle, SW, from Northwest drive to Montee drive, and $5,250 for Kenyon street, SE, from Kirwood avenue to Wylie street.

Sam Finley, Inc., appeared low on paving Skipper drive, NW, from Waterford road to Joiner road, asking $22,314 for the job.

AUTO CHOPS POLE—An automobile Wednesday struck a utility pole in the 400 block of Decatur street, SE, snapping it off. Patrolman C. H. Waites, shown making an impound ticket on the car, said the pole fell across the street in a shower of sparks from electrical wires. Waites said Augustus W. Warren, of 59 Broyles St., SE, was booked on charges of drunk in an auto. He added he could locate no witness to the crash.

GEORGIA NEWS ROUNDUP

Glynn Man Vanishes; Murder Charge Filed

A Brunswick bricklayer will get a hearing at Jesup Friday on a murder charge which his lawyer says was brought without motive or body.

The defendant, James E. Price, 31, is accused in a warrant taken by authorities after the disappearance Jan. 31 of Frank O'Neal, 43, Brunswick resident, who worked at Jesup as a motor car salesman.

Sheriff John Redding and a band of some 50 volunteers today searched rural sections of Wayne County in an effort to find a trace of O'Neal. The sheriff says he was last seen in Price's company. But Wesley Wrags of Brunswick, Price's attorney, says his client's only connection with the case was to call O'Neal's firm at his request and ask delivery of a used car.

The call was made to give O'Neal an excuse to leave on a "personal venture." Wrags declared. Price was in Jesup looking for work and encountered O'Neal, who persuaded him to place the call, the lawyer quoted Price. Redding said Price had not answered all questions put to him. City Court Judge Warner Gibbs will hold a preliminary hearing on a warrant sworn by the Georgia Bureau of Investigation.

Farming of Future

A look at the next 25 years in agriculture will be presented at Athens next week at a meeting of the Agricultural Committee of the Georgia Bankers Association.

The meeting will be held at the Georgia Center for Continuing Education Feb. 19-20. Jack Hunt, 30, of Columbus, was sentenced in Chatham County superior court at Savannah to 20 years Wednesday. He was charged with raping an 81-year-old Augusta woman in her Savannah Beach hotel room last Thanksgiving.

Fighting 'Bondage' by Voting, 800 Negroes Are Told Here

Likening themselves to the children of Israel, Atlanta Negroes Wednesday night were exhorted to couple the voting booth with faith in God to lead themselves "from the bondage of segregation."

At a mass meeting at Mt. Moriah Baptist Church—one of 21 simultaneous "Crusade for Citizenship" gatherings in nine Southern states—the Rev. Charles Kinzie Steele declared:

"Segregation and democracy can no longer co-exist—one of the other must die. Our republic can't go on half free and half segregated. . . anyone who has an ounce of patriotism in his blood can register and vote."

The Rev. Mr. Steel, president of the Tallahassee, Fla., Inter-civic Council, was greeted by a chorus of amens, applause and shouts when he added:

"Democracy is on trial when a governor of a sovereign state declares he will do all in his power to keep people from voting because they are people of color. Mr. Griffin is your governor. The only way you can clear yourself of racial sins is to say: 'I voted against him.'"

More than 800 persons filled the Ashby street church. Two civil rights resolutions were adopted by the Atlanta group, as prepared by the sponsoring Southern Leadership Conference.

The president of the AME Ministers Union, the Rev. W. W. Stephens, told the group: "This particular time is our day. . . We must show we can get together and organize a faction not for the few but for the group."

A 94-year-old retired minister, the Rev. W. F. Paschall, said: "I have voted since I was 18 years old. If you sit down now and do nothing, brother, there'll come a time when you'll have nothing."

Yehudi Menuhin Offers A Definitive Beethoven

By BRUCE GALPHIN

Yehudi Menuhin's reading of the Beethoven Violin Concerto with the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra Wednesday night could well stand as the ultimate interpretation of the work.

His performance was exciting in its virtuosity, flawless in technique and incisive in its exploration of the score.

Menuhin's instrument cried with passion against the more serene role of the orchestra.

AMPLE PROOF
The violinist amply demonstrated, in such passages as that at the end of the first movement, why his reputation as a virtuoso is so great.

He is not all razzle-dazzle, but a truly great artist: the same perfection comes forth even from mundane passages, if there be any in this concerto masterpiece. As has been noted before, Maestro Henry Sopkin is consistently good with Beethoven. In Wednesday night's performance, the pace was excellent and the phrasing well articulated.

EDWARD MEYLAN
The symphony program opened with "The Swan of Tuonela," which provided a vehicle for a superb English horn reading by Edward Meylan.

The orchestra created a lovely image from this gentle Sibelius work: the swan herself, as painted by Meylan, and the water, rippling in crests and troughs of musical intensity.

A reading of "Symphonie Fantastique" was not so successful, though one cannot criticize the performance itself without first considering the work's potentialities, its faults and virtues.

In the first place, the Berlioz symphony could easily have used double the number of strings possessed by the Atlantans. Sopkin was never quite able to exact from his players the huge bursts of dynamic explosion the work really demands.

Then too, the symphony is episodic and, between its lucious colors and melodies, inclined to wander. Sopkin did not bridge some of these unbridgeable gaps.

There were a few extraneous defects, too: the violins never quite agreed on the pitch, and the brass in the final movement sounded more like a boiler works.

But there were many beautiful moments, notably the flowing, melodic second movement which featured superb harp work by Mary Spalding.

TO RETIRE
Supt. Hilderbrand

Police Head Will Retire This Month

By KEELER McCARTNEY
A man whose reputation for honesty, integrity and sincerity of purpose has come to be recognized as a cornerstone of the Atlanta Police Department has applied for pension.

He is Supt. E. I. Hilderbrand, the oldest man in point of service with the department. After 36 years of police work, the sprightly, grey-haired Hilderbrand intends to revert to civilian life with no trouble at all.

Feb. 28 will be his last day as a policeman.

LARGE FAMILY

Life won't be dull for Hilderbrand. He found time to raise a family of nine, six girls and three boys. He has 15 grandchildren.

Besides, he says, there's plenty of work around the house which Mrs. Hilderbrand has been urging him to do all these years. "I am like Fibber McGee," he chuckled. "There's closets around the house I've been meaning to clean out for years and for one reason and another never got around to it."

"Now I won't have much excuse for putting it off."

GREATLY DOUBT

Those who knew Hilderbrand best in the years he served with the department greatly doubt that he ever shirked any chore. When the going got tough or when a job arose which called for a man whose reputation could not be challenged, the call went out for Hilderbrand.

Back in the early 1940's when draftees began pouring into military camps, the question of prostitution and the attending venereal diseases became a paramount issue. Hilderbrand, who was made lieutenant July 30, 1942, was given the cleanup job.

"It wasn't very difficult," he recalled. "All the better people were behind us—the press, the Chamber of Commerce, the solicitors and the courts."

15-HOUR DAYS

What Hilderbrand failed to mention was the 15-hour working days which he and members of his squad put in; the weekend round-ups in which as many as 30 or 40 hotel bellboys were arrested as procurers.

The tireless lieutenant and his hard-hitting crew delivered a stroke which broke the back of prostitution as an organized vice in Atlanta and eventually resulted in national recognition for the city as an ideal example of civilian and military authority cooperation.

FIRST DAY

He worked his first day as a policeman on Dec. 13, 1921, and was assigned to bicycle duty on the southside. Plagued by a lack of money then as now, the department had no bicycle for him to ride. So he walked.

Hilderbrand caught a burglary suspect that first night out, a youth who fled from a drug store with a sack of merchandise over his shoulder.

"He shot at me and I shot at him," Hilderbrand said. "He missed me. I got him in the arm and he gave up."

Hilderbrand finally got his bicycle and in 1928 was graduated to the horse patrol. He worked off and on from 1932 in the detective bureau and in 1945 was made detective superintendent. His present assignment is head of the uniform division.

DREW CASE

The one thing Hilderbrand was never quite able to finish satisfactorily as a policeman was the strange murder of Miss Antoinette Farnsworth Drew. Miss Drew, an artist and one-time debutante in Atlanta, was found dead Sept. 15, 1941, in her home at 88 Ellis St., N.E.

Hilderbrand, who was assigned to the investigation, felt sure that he located the man responsible. However, he was never able to secure sufficient evidence for prosecution.

Suspect in Kidnap-Robbery Here Is Arrested

A 20-year-old soldier reported absent without leave Wednesday was under arrest at Milwaukee, Wis., in connection with the kidnap-robbery of an Atlanta service station attendant, the FBI said. Julian Clifford Andreau, of Jacksonville, Fla., surrendered to Milwaukee police and was turned over to federal authorities, according to N. R. Johnson, special agent in charge of the Atlanta FBI office.

Johnson said a warrant was obtained Monday charging Andreau with kidnaping Garland Hale Jr., 18, a Russell High School senior, from a service station on Feb. 6 and leaving him bound and gagged in a motel at Chattanooga, Tennessee. No decision has been reached on whether Andreau will be returned to Atlanta immediately, Johnson said. However, Detectives O. L. Adams and J. H. Barnes said they would seek an indictment before the Fulton County grand jury, possibly Friday, charging Andreau with armed robbery—a capital offense in Georgia.

Adams and Barnes said Andreau already had been identified in the abduction and robbery of Hale. They said Hale was forced into an automobile at a service station at 186 Northside Dr., S.W., where he works the night shift, slugged and driven to Chattanooga. At the Chattanooga motel Hale was tied and gagged with bed sheets in a similar manner that Fabius Frankel, New York diamond merchant, was found here in a hotel room two months ago. The hot water shower faucet was turned on in the Chattanooga motel as it was in the hotel room where Frankel was found robbed and slain, officers said. Officers here said they would ask the Chattanooga police department for the knots removed from young Hale for comparison with the knots found in the hotel room here. They added they also would seek to determine Andreau's whereabouts at the time Frankel was slain. Andreau was reported absent from Ft. Campbell, Ky., officers said.

Fulton Asks Equality on School Unit

By MARION GAINES

The Fulton County Board of Education has requested "equal representation" on a proposed commission that would study the possibility of merging the Atlanta and Fulton school systems.

The recommendation for "equal representation" was approved after the board voted to endorse a proposed new law setting up a "Local Education Commission" to study schools in Atlanta, Fulton and the Atlanta portion of DeKalb County.

The Atlanta Board of Education Monday night pledged its backing of the proposed study. Legislation establishing the commission would be introduced in the General Assembly by the Fulton delegation.

10 MEMBERS

Fulton board members pointed out at their session Tuesday in the courthouse that the study commission, as tentatively proposed, would consist of 10 members: the presidents of the Atlanta and Fulton education boards and a representative of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, in addition to four representatives from Atlanta and three from Fulton.

"I think the (Fulton) people would be happier with equal representation on the commission," declared board member Guy Webb.

Mrs. P. D. Christian said, "A joint system might work well in some cases, but it could prove too cumbersome." She said she favored the proposed study but that it "would have to come up with something real progressive."

FAVORS PARTICIPATION

Board president W. L. Robinson said the board "is highly in favor of participating and co-operating" and in making the study "a professional one that would give a fair, unbiased report of the effects of amalgamation."

Regarding the composition of the commission, Fulton School Supt. Paul West quoted Fulton legislators as saying they would reserve the right to determine the number of members on the study group.

The board also voted to recommend that commission members receive compensation for their services.

Mrs. Dorough, Wife of Doctor, Is Dead Here

Mrs. Roberta Cook Dorough, wife of Dr. W. S. Dorough, died Wednesday morning in a private hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Dorough was born in Leesburg. She was the daughter of the late Philip Cook, former secretary of state. Her home was at 2450 Peachtree Rd., N.W.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at Spring Hill. Dr. Allison F. Williams and Canon Samuel T. Cobb will officiate. Burial will be in Westview Cemetery.

Surviving also are a son, Sheldon Dorough, Atlanta; a sister, Mrs. George Tyler, Atlanta, and two brothers, Lawrence Cook, Atlanta, and Arthur Cook, Pensacola, Fla.

John Bassett, Newsmen, Dies

MONTREAL, Feb. 12 (UP)—John Bassett, chairman of the board of directors of the Montreal Gazette, died in a hospital tonight. He was 72. He had been seriously ill about two months.

A native of Northern Ireland, Bassett joined the Gazette as a cub reporter in 1910. In an association with the daily that lasted almost half a century, he was one of Canada's most prominent newspaper figures.

He became chairman of the company in March 1956. As president from 1937 to 1956, he guided the Gazette through the years of the depression and World War II and into rapid expansion in the postwar years.

MORTUARY

Mrs. EMMETT ROGGS. Funeral services for Mrs. Emmett Roggs, 158 Adair St., Decatur, who died Tuesday at her home, will be held at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in Trinity Chapel. The Rev. Harry Tisdale and the Rev. Charles Schwab will officiate. Burial will be in East View Cemetery.

Mrs. MARY FRANCES BAKER. Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Frances Baker, 29, of 402 Fifth St., N.W., who died Monday night in a local hospital, were held at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Riverside Chapel. The Rev. W. W. Harty officiated. Burial was in the Marietta Campground Cemetery, Cobb County.

GI Given 13 Years

In Attack on Girl, 16

KAISERSLAUTERN, Germany, Feb. 12 (UP)—A U.S. Army court-martial today sentenced Levi G. Miles, 22, of Kenansville, N. C., to 13 years at hard labor after finding him guilty of attempting to rape a 16-year-old German girl.

Miles, a Negro, had attacked the girl and attempted to rape her behind a cemetery wall, the prosecution said.

Broker Geo. Weyman Dies

Funeral services for George Fontaine Weyman, 56, Atlanta stock and bond broker, will be at 10:30 a.m. Friday at Spring Hill. The Rev. Wilson W. Sneed will officiate, with burial in Westview Cemetery.

George F. Weyman

Mr. Weyman died unexpectedly Tuesday night in an Atlanta hospital. His home was at 2752 Howell Mill Rd., N.W.

A former manager of R. S. Dickson & Company's Atlanta office, Mr. Weyman continued his association with the firm. He was with Courts & Co. here before joining the other firm in 1951.

A native of Atlanta, Mr. Weyman attended Episcopal High School in Alexandria, Va. He was a graduate of the University of Virginia and a veteran of World War II. He was a member of the Ansley Park Golf Club.

Surviving are two daughters, Miss Margaret Weyman, a University of Georgia student, and Mrs. Cecil Brownlow, Washington, D.C.; two brothers, Fontaine and Sam M. Weyman, Atlanta, and a sister, Mrs. Alexander Yearley, Atlanta.

Brown's Johnson Nabs Point Crown

Rebel's 24-Point Average
2nd Best Ever in Atlanta

Allan Johnson, tow-headed Brown High guard, won the Atlanta City League scoring title with the second highest average ever posted in Region 3-AAA, an even 24 points a game.

Johnson, who socked home 21, 27, 29 and 28 points in his last four games, assaulted the nets for 336 points in 14 league outings to post a loop record that stands second only to the 25.9 average that Murphy's Paul Cochran rolled up in 1955.

Cochran's mark was made on 311 points in 12 loop outings and is the highest Class AAA record ever made in Georgia.

The Johnson genius made Brown the state's only unbeaten AAA team in regular season, and the Rebels will be playing in the city tournament Saturday, seeking a berth in The Constitution-sponsored state tournament.

The 5-10 blond averaged only 13 points a game a year ago, was 32nd high scorer in the state, 10th in the city and third on his own team. He beat out Northside's Roy Roberts, last year's top point producer in Region 3-AAA. Roberts, tenth in the state with an 18.0 per-game average, finished at 20.3 for second place this time around.

CARYL'S 3RD CROWN? The Lenahan Story: Bushels of Baskets

By JIM CARSON

An excited Northside fan just behind the scorer's table kept repeating, "Just one more Caryl, just one more."

Out on the Northside gym floor, a pretty 16-year-old Caryl Lenahan was shooting the West Fulton girls team to shreds. But she had only 48 points and 50 seemed to strike her fan as being proper.

Caryl grabbed a rebound and converted it easily into two points. The fan sighed satisfactorily as the Northside star was replaced by a sub with yet two minutes left to play. And Caryl drew only a mild round of applause.

After all, she usually puts enough points through the hoop to fill a silo with basketballs. And 50 points was just a little above the 40.2 average it boosted her to.

Of this there is no question. She is one of the best girl basketball players in Georgia today... maybe one of the best ever.

Aside from her fabulous scoring record, which other feminine greats have matched in days gone by, Caryl is an athlete. Since she was 12 years old she has spent some part of every 12 months of the year practicing shots on her back yard goal. She has the heart and determination into greats possess.

You can get a wager in any part of Atlanta's Northside that she'll match her hook shot, for accuracy, with any high school male in town. She shoots a deadly jump and drives as aggressively as a boy. Under the basket she rarely misses. And she tips stray rebounds with the same success. It all adds up to 66 per cent field goal success. She fires free throws at 72 per cent.

She's helped carry Northside to two state AAA cage titles.

THIS IS THE WAY SHE SHOOTS:
1955-56 SEASON—72 total points; 34.7 regular season average; 31 city tournament average; 22.0 state tournament average.
1956-57 SEASON—95 total points; 35.1 regular season average; 24.7 city tournament average; 29.3 state tournament average.
1957-58 SEASON—84 total points; 40.2 regular season average.

And her heart's set on No. 3 in this, her senior year.

Her coach, Coyle Wilson, says she's even valuable as a coach. But after she fires the last one in the upcoming tournaments, she'll probably turn to tennis. "I'm planning on going to college in Florida next year," she said Wednesday, rather glumly, "and I'm afraid the basketball's over with. You know most schools don't have much in girls basketball."

With her agility, as well as athletic ability, there's little doubt she'll be a fine women's tennis player. And with the record she's leaving at Northside, there's little doubt they'll be shooting at it a long time.

Cage Results

Top-seeded Southwest DeKalb drew a first-round bye Wednesday as pairings for the Region 4-AAA basketball tournament were made in a meeting at Marist College.

The Panthers, who sport a 10-0 Region play slate and the Region's leading scorer, Tommy Norwood, won't go into action in the tournament at Rossville's High School gymnasium until Wednesday night.

Then they'll meet the winner of Tuesday night's Cedartown-Athens battle.

The tournament opens Tuesday afternoon at 3:45 with a girls' game between Southwest DeKalb and Russell. Both boys' and girls' finals are Saturday night.

Second-seeded Rossville boys likewise drew a blank on the first round and don't get their machine into tourney movement until Thursday night at 8:45. The opponent then will be the winner of the Rome-Marietta affair set for Tuesday.

Other first-round byes in the boys' division were drawn by third-seeded Russell, fourth-seeded Dalton and Griffin. Defending champion Decatur opens boys' play with Marist at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Girls' teams drawing byes in the first round were Marietta, Sacred Heart, Cedartown, Athens, Rome and Griffin.

Despite sitting out Tuesday night's game in which Russell threw his mates for a 49-46 non-league loss, Norwood retained the top scoring spot with a 15.8 average.

Right behind him are Marietta's Charles Bagby and John Nix of Cedartown, with 14.5 marks.

sleeper. He intercepted nine passes (third in the league) and teamed with Bobby Dillon to give us the best pass defense in the league.

"Carl played offense a lot. And when that boy fills out he's going to be a terror, we think."

Reid and his wife, also a native of Hamilton, Ohio, have three children, two girls and one boy. They live year around in Green Bay.

At Georgia, the 30-year-old coach performed at fullback in 1945 and halfback in 1947, '48 and '49.

Sports publicist Dan Magill reports records are not available on Reid's 1945 season. But after a year in the service, Breezy returned to Georgia and blasted out 1,265 yards on the college gridiron.

Ironically, he scored 36 points each year.

"Breezy was one of the best ball carriers Georgia ever had," Wallace Butts commented from Athens. "I'm delighted to hear of the job, and I know he will do an outstanding job."

Reid gained 486 yards in 1947, 321 in 1948 and 458 in 1949. His last season he was hampered by a sprained ankle the second game of the year.

His most memorable performance came in 1949 when he twisted, butted and churned 25 yards for the touchdown that gave the Bulldogs a 20-20 tie with Auburn.

"It was one of the most determined runs I've ever seen," Butts said.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12 (AP).—Three Georgians purchased tickets to Chicago here Wednesday night as they hammered their way to Southern Golden Gloves championships.

Atlanta heavyweight Lamar Mitchell, a last minute substitute on the Peach State power platform, gained a unanimous decision over Arthur Bowers of Upper East Tennessee.

Cedartown's Sonny Moore, representing Acworth, got the nod of all three judges over Al Zehner, Upper Cumberland Valley Tennessee, for the light heavyweight championship.

Sharp-shooting Charles Harbour of Columbus squeezed out a split decision over Nashville favorite Frankie Marlow for the welterweight diadem.

credited to Atlanta flyweight Ray McLean who lost a unanimous decision to Jackie Range of Upper East Tennessee.

It was the first time in modern history three Georgians had copped a coveted Southern diadem the same year. Last time a Peach Stater had triumphed was Al Pruitt's success in 1955.

The victorious battlers of coaches Dickie Davis (Columbus) and Carter Morgan (Atlanta) gave Georgia almost a half of the individual crowns. Upper East Tennessee, winner of the team title because they had more men in the finals, and Nashville grabbed two titles each and Chattanooga gained one.

Next plateau for the Southern winners is the Western division championships at Chicago.

HINSON'S IRISH UPSET KINGS HAVE EYES ON STATE MEET

By CHARLES ROBERTS

Some folks say you can't win. Others insist you can't lose. Jim Hinson, O'Keefe basketball coach, has proved you can break even. His teams have done just that for four consecutive years.

His Irish, who go into the City League tournament that starts at the Bass gym Friday as the number one "spoilers" of the 1958 season, have had won-lost charts of 13-13, 14-14, 11-11 and 10-10 for the last four cage seasons.

But for a coach who is always looking to the future, he has a remarkable past. His 1951, 1952, 1953 and 1954 quintets rolled up consecutive season records of 17-4, 13-6, 18-11 and 20-4, a composite 68-27. And in four of his seven head coaching years at O'Keefe (51, 53, 54, 55) his green-and-white-clad boys in short pants won berths in the state tournament.

A spot in the GHSA's 1958 state AAA meet, the bounce-angaza The Constitution will sponsor at Alexander Coliseum Feb. 26-March 1, is the current goal of the Irish. And they have looking to the future. Hunter, Jimmy Curry, James DuBose, Bobby Duty and Wayne O'Shields are only juniors. Bubba Wilson, like Ledbetter, is a soph with great potential which he is already fulfilling. Cary Vaughn, another "comer," is also a mere soph. Only Buddy Walker and Eddie Lovelless of those seeing action are seniors.

Hinson, whose O'Keefe teams have made a lot of history in city and state tournaments, names Frank Tippet of his 1951 team as the finest all-round player he's had.

He places him on his all-time Hinson-era O'Keefe team with

BUBBA WILSON
A Soph To Remember

Tippet. In 1953, the Irish made the state meet, beat Richmond Academy and Lanier, lost to eventual champ North Fulton and beat Savannah for third place.

Hinson's top quintet was the 20-4 team of 1954. It won the city crown and bowed to eventual state champ Baker, 70-56, in the quarterfinals. Farr, Jimmy Shaw, Dickey Duncan, Salter, Jimmy Abbot and Jimmy Sosebee did the playing. Fritz Couch being the only loss from 1953.

In 1955, the O'Keefeers were trimmed by Murphy in the city semis and Baker in the first round of the state. That was another "O'Keefe upset" year. The Irish finished eighth in loop play—as they did this year—but knocked first-place Sylvan out of the city meet. In 1956 they ousted Brown in the first round of the city but fell to Murphy.

O'Keefe stunned Brown in a late 1957 upset as freshman Ledbetter fired 25 points, but barely lost to Brown in the first round of the city meet as Ledbetter notched 21 more.

Will 1958 produce another city tournament upset by the men of Hinson—and a state tournament spot? Hinson says, "Maybe. We never admit we're beat until we are."

RALPH HUNTER
The Tiger Tamer

Billy Salter (1954), who set an all-time one-game scoring record of 41 points in the state meet against Benedictine; Franklin Brooks (1952), red-haired Farrell Farr (1955) and Jimmy Nisewonger (1952). Ledbetter has the potential to oust someone from that list in the years ahead.

Hinson's 1951 Irish, featuring Bobby McCauley, Brooks, Nisewonger, Tippet and Jimmy Smithson, lost their state tourney opener to Savannah, 36-35, in an historic four overtimes.

In 1952, the Irish were dumped by Smith in the quarterfinals of the city tournament. That was the year that the great 6-4 Salter replaced the graduated been attaining a few goals in their usual late-season rush. Northside and Russell, previous conquerors of the Hinsonmen, fell in the final two games, 63-60 and 52-46.

But the Irish, with a history for pulling stunning upsets late in the year, must first beat Grady—a team they haven't met—and North Fulton's Eastern Division champions to reach this coveted goal. The Bulldogs clipped the Irish twice in en route to a 21-2 record, 66-59 and 58-44.

Still, it must be remembered the O'Keefeers almost knocked a great Brown team from the city meet a year ago. And, right now, they're hot. For instance, guard Ralph Hunter, usually a 10-points-per-game shooter, fired 22 in one half against Northside. And V. A. Ledbetter, 6-4 soph center who didn't play in the early games, stuffed in 23 and claimed 21 rebounds against Russell. That's the stuff of which upsets are made.

Schedule

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 12. Southern Assn. baseball men Wednesday praised the 1958 league schedule.

"The best I've seen, transportation-wise," said New Orleans' general manager Vince Rizzo. "The way I figure it, we'll travel approximately 10,000 miles this season; last year it was 12,000 or better."

"It's much better," echoed Birmingham general manager Eddie Glennon. "It couldn't be bad for you," teased another. "You're the central team."

Another suggested the schedule be drawn up each year in time for presentation at the All-Star game, with approval coming during the minor league convention.

LINE SHOTS: Conspicuous by their absence were two popular Southern standbys, Joe Engel of Chattanooga and Bill McCarthy of Nashville, both ailing. . . Vince Rizzo says the short fence in the New Orleans park measures approximately 262 feet. It's in left. . . The Pelicans, incidentally, have a full working agreement with the New York Yankees this season. Last year it was only a partial agreement. . . The name you hear most whenever Southern baseball men get together: Don Nottebart, Atlanta Crackers' 18-game winner. He left quite an impression.

Lone loss in the final round was credited to Atlanta flyweight Ray McLean who lost a unanimous decision to Jackie Range of Upper East Tennessee.

It was the first time in modern history three Georgians had copped a coveted Southern diadem the same year. Last time a Peach Stater had triumphed was Al Pruitt's success in 1955.

The victorious battlers of coaches Dickie Davis (Columbus) and Carter Morgan (Atlanta) gave Georgia almost a half of the individual crowns. Upper East Tennessee, winner of the team title because they had more men in the finals, and Nashville grabbed two titles each and Chattanooga gained one.

Next plateau for the Southern winners is the Western division championships at Chicago.

Items of Interest To Look For
When You Visit Atlanta Coliseum

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Some people you may be able to see when the GHSA's Constitution-sponsored State Class AAA basketball bouncanza dribbles into Alexander Coliseum two weeks from yesterday:

A cotton-topped floormaster named Allan Johnson, who shot 45 points for Brown in a game against Russell. A carbon copy of him physically, 5-10 Frank Clark, who fired 36 and 35 points in two games in less than a week for Richmond Academy. A 6-5 center dubbed Tommy Mahaffey, who gunned in 42 points in a 1-AAA game where it just isn't done—for LaGrange, which scored 81 points to tough Jordan's mere 20 that night.

A 6-4 O'Keefe sophomore center, V. A. Ledbetter, who was good enough as a freshman to shoot 25 and 21 points in an upset and another near-upset of Brown, which won 23 of 26 games.

A 6-5 Murphy center, Morris Mitchell, who made the all-state tournament team as a soph.

Butch Norris, Russell guard who is only a ninth grader and destined for top stardom. Three of Georgia's greatest all-round athletes, Savannah's Jimmy Miller, Southwest DeKalb's Tommy Norwood and West Fulton's Jimmy Rakestraw. Twin guards, North Fulton's John and James Mynatt.

A red-hot red head, Northside's Roy Roberts, who finished in the top 10 among state AAA scorers for two years. At least four of Georgia's greatest old-head coaches, Brown's Roy Rowlett, Baker's James (Bubba) Ball, O'Keefe's Jim Hinson and LaGrange's Al Marloti and a newcomer coaching sensation, Columbus High's Dewey Renfro.

THE FUNNYBONE—Harry Logue, Avondale coach after his team pulled stunning 37-36 upset of Druid Hills on two foul shots by Jimmy Mobley with eight seconds left: "That's the first time in history anyone ever got any cheap points on an Elmer Morrow-coached team."

PREP PRATTLE — The frown-infested coaching ranks will sorely miss one of the sunniest faces it ever had unless Boots Payne moves on to another school now that Marist has seen fit to "go Notre Dame" and not renew his pact after six years. "Mr. Offense" (Bob Nast) and "Mr. Defense" (Hicks Lanier) have made Emmett Wright's Westminster Wildcats one of Georgia's most-feared AA quintets. Westminster handed Jack Hanson's Fairburn Campbell and its great Darrell Crawford only their second loss (50-40) in 19 games. . . . All winning streaks are made to be broken—except the home-court skein of the Jeff Davis girls. The Hazlehurst lassies finished 21-0 and have won 120 in a row at home. . . . The Doerun Does, who opened the week with a 23-1 won-lost chart, are seeking a game with Jim Cavan's R. E. Lee hotshots (20-1). Mary Persons of Forsyth beat Lee, 45-33. . . . Dallas girls finished 13-0, and Bub Craton's female people haven't dropped a regular season decision in two years. . . . Names of the week: Carnesville's Undine Crunkleton and Nacoochee's Dorcas Anderson. They're top stars, too. . . . Don't mess with these gals, boys. They've got great shooting eyes; Northside's Caryl Lenahan, who averaged 42.2 for the year and hit 50 in her final game; Berrien's Donna Gaskins, who hit 58 in one game, and Hoboken's Carolyn Aldridge and Putnam County's Dorothy Paschal, who have 51 nights to remember.

JOHN MATHEWS, Crawford County soph, is averaging 22.2 points a game, Reidsville's Coy Hodges 21.5, Tifton's Tommy Cottle and Pine Log's 5-6 Billy Roberts 20 apiece. . . . Never thought I'd see the Day Dept.: A fellow who could hit 28 against an Eric Staples' Perry team, but Cuthbert's Oscar Tye did. . . . No tall boys who can "go" this year, they say. How about 6-7 Gary Cullins, who keeps Tennille rolling. . . . Don't expect things to get better for foes of Fred Fussell's North Fulton. The B team hit 62 per cent against Bass. Hutch Johnson hit 20 points, and Fred Loomis got 11 points and 15 rebounds in a little more than a half. . . . When College Park and Headland played—both strong quintets—there wasn't a senior on the floor. . . . Fairmount, a top Class C team, takes "unfair advantage." One of Coach Gordon Craig's stars is brother Henry Craig. . . . Heard County and Carnesville finished 22-2. Warner Robins is 17-5, West Side 19-4, Jeff Davis 18-4. Fairmount's Sonny Ponder made Red Bud bleed with 32 points. . . . Top offensive star for Jaktia (22-2) is Frank Miller, averaging 20 a game. Defensive ace is Lamar Miller but no kin. . . . Bert Prather insists we announce that Darriel Broom, Trion quarterback, is one of Georgia's top high school golfers. (Bert "puts out" the paper today. That's one item he won't cut out).

Sargent Sets New Format

DUNEDIN, Fla., Feb. 12 (AP)—A brand-new format for National Golf Day, an annual event which has raised nearly $600,000 for charity, was announced today by Harold Sargent, president of the Professional Golfers Assn. of America.

Sargent said both the PGA champion and the Open champion will compete in the seventh annual event June 7.

As a high point in the week-long National Golf Day competition, Lionel Hebert, the 1957 PGA champion, and Dick Mayer, the 1957 Open champion, will compete in an 18-hole medal play match.

Pros and amateurs, including both sexes, will compete against the winner of the "Round of the Champion" in a coast-to-coast tournament.

fighting for a playoff berth when first place seems lost and the fans pulling for them in a late drive. Suppose a club is way out front in August. Interest would die if players and fans didn't have the playoffs to look forward to.

"For the players, it would be a natural let down."

And so it seems that when the Southern abolished the playoffs and interleague rivalry last week they were "just whistling Dixie."

Attending the meeting were Jasper Donaldson of Atlanta, Eddie Glennon and Albert Belcher of Birmingham, Ray Winder of Little Rock, Zinn Beck of Chattanooga, Nat Buring and Danny Meneidez of Memphis, Vince Rizzo of New Orleans, and James McPhillips of Mobile.

Hurth held the proxy vote of Nashville's Bill McCarthy, who was unable to be present due to illness.

State Amateur Golf Set for July 16-20

Arnold Blum Will Return For Shot at Aaron's Title

By BERT PRATHER

Georgia's State Amateur golf championship, which was awarded Athens Country Club at last annual meeting of Georgia State Golf Assn., will be played July 16-20.

Announcement of dates were made by GSGA president Jennings Gordon of Rome Wednesday.

Gordon, who has just returned from Texas where he competed in the fabulous "Life Begins at Forty Tournament," said he's anticipating one of the finest tournaments yet at Athens.

"It is my hope that we'll have all the top players in the state tournament for Athens. The annual Southern Intercollegiate and Southeastern Conference titles will be settled there May 1-3.

Gordon, who is also vice president of Southern Golf Assn., said 35 clubs had paid up their 1958 dues and that he expected this number to be doubled by tournament time.

SEPGA Meets Here March 5

The Southeastern Professional Golfers Assn. will hold its winter meeting at Atlanta March 5, SEPGA president Bill Hall announced Wednesday.

A pro-pro better-ball tournament will be held at the North Fulton golf course the day before the meeting, Hall added. He is professional at North Fulton.

Macon's Arnold Blum, who has won the state a record five times, had to pass up last year's tournament in order to get ready for the Walker Cup matches, said in a speech before the annual dinner meeting at Augusta that he'd be back in '58.

A lot of the other name players in the state, who have been passing up the tournament, have indicated they'll try to get back in the swim.

Meanwhile, a crew of young sharpshooters have taken over. And it is not a very substantial bet that they will be easily dislodged.

Tommy Aaron, Gainesville, who was just 20, defeated 18-year-old Cobby Ware, Augusta, in finals of 1957 championship at Augusta Country Club. Both there lads will return along with a whole passel of other young swingers. So, the "oldsters" may find the going rather tough upon their return.

Aaron also went on to take the State Open crown over a strong field of pros and amateurs at Albany's Radium Country Club.

The State will be second big

Decatur Team Hears Morris

Larry Morris, one of the all-time football greats at Georgia Tech and Decatur High, will make the principal talk as Coach Charlie Hall's Region 4-AAA South grid champs are honored at a banquet in the school cafeteria at 7 o'clock Thursday night.

Gamecock Star Probably to Run For Legislature

COLUMBIA, Feb. 12 (AP)—A House page who runs errands for the lawmakers and the football touch-downs at the University of South Carolina may be calling a few turns himself this time next year.

Star halfback King Dixon, 21, a pre-law student, said today he expects to announce soon his candidacy from his home county, Laurens, for the state House of Representatives.

The 5-8 triple-threat halfback has been a leading scorer and yard gainer on the football team for the past two seasons.

If he runs, Dixon will be seeking to fill the place occupied in 1955 and 1956 by his father, King Dixon Sr.

Young Dixon said today he's not ready to announce, "but I expect I will before long."

Marist Nips Griffin Five

A Marist rally in the fourth quarter capped an uphill battle that shot down Griffin, 47-44, Wednesday night at the Marist College gym.

After trailing 25-19 at halftime, and 40-30, at the third period's end, Coach Boots Payne's Cadets rallied behind guard Teddy Egan's

BIRD WATCHING'S EXCELLENT FOR BREAKFAST DIGESTION

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

Constitution Outdoor Columnist

Some Saturday afternoon when you haven't got anything else to do, get out your hammer, saw, nails, a couple of pieces of scrap board and a pole, and knock together a bird feeder for the back yard. It's not hard to do. It doesn't have to be a cabinet maker's job. As long as it will hold a few choice things that birds like to eat, it will add a dash of action, color and drama to the days you spend around the house.

Many years ago I was having breakfast with Dr. Herbert Stoddard at his rambling, spacious plantation home in Sherwood Forest. The naturalist seated me where I could look out of the window at one of his bird feeders.

So much was going on around that elevated platform that I forgot to eat, and I'm sure that my conversation was even more unintelligible than usual. But my host and hostess didn't seem to mind. They were getting a charge out of my open-mouthed glimpse into the lives of the Sherwood Forest birds.

One thing that caught my fancy was the apparent rank of each winged citizen, and that it was recognized by all bird-dom. The bullies in the crowd seemed to be the cardinal and the flicker, that you and I know as the old-fashioned yellow-hammer.

When they came in to feed, the other birds gave them plenty of room. Even the bluejay moved back a respectful distance, which surprised me some, because he makes so much loud conversation that I always thought he owned the woods.

After breakfast Herb showed me the details of his feeder. It was a simple wooden platform about 30 inches square, around which he had put a raised border to help hold the feed he placed there for his birds.

The platform sat squarely on top of a post, which had been raised to a level with the window, and could be seen from the dining table. A clump of shrubbery grew near the feeder, and was protection for the birds if a hawk or one of their other enemies happened by.

I noticed that many of the feathered diners arrived by way of the shrubbery clump, and always paused there to look around before they came to dinner.

The most popular food Dr. Stoddard had found was peanut cake. I don't blame the birds. I could live on that stuff myself. Some birds are seed eaters, like the cardinals and sparrows, and have beaks built for the purpose of husking and cracking seeds.

Other birds eat insects and must have a protein diet. Their bills are slender and sometimes curved for probing into tree bark cracks and around the edges of leaves and stems to get to the insects there. The peanut cake seemed to satisfy the whole feathered tribe.

Herb said that before he had found this cake to be the perfect food, he used cracked corn, chicken feed and different grains, and tacked on a piece of suet, or beef fat, for his insect-eating visitors. Sometimes he substituted cracked pecans or mashed peanuts until he thought about the cake.

I came home and put up a bird-feeding station near my dining room window, and then while the idea was new, tried to sell it to everyone I met. Those who did put up feeding stations got many hours of enjoyment out of them.

My station sat in the back yard for several seasons until the pine post finally broke off at the ground. I was too trifling to cut another one out of the back lot. But I'll do it for sure before spring rolls around and all the brightly-colored migrants come through, going north. Maybe I can even talk Miss Kaye out of a tad of her grocery money to buy a little peanut cake.

Britt Impresses Leahy

It's gone. I really enjoyed working with young men."

Would he be interested in an advisory coaching job?

"I would say yes," he began. "As I said, I enjoy working with young men. If such a job became open or was offered, I would seriously consider it."

SHORT NOTES: Wyatt, when asked of his 1956 Vols, saw everything hinging on spring training. "We have only George Wright returning at tailback," he said. "So experience there is shy. We got a junior college transfer, a boy by the name of Bob Finley from Marion (Ala.) Institute. He's a good passer, and we hope he will help out at tailback. One thing for sure, we'll know where we stand after our first three games—Auburn, Miss. State and Georgia Tech all on the road. . . . Leahy was a dinner guest of Coach Butts. The former Irish mentor figures to return to Chicago Thursday. "Gotta get where it's not so cold," he joked as a north wind swept down.

SCRAMMAGE SCRAPS: The Bulldogs' 90-man squad took advantage of a cool, partly cloudy afternoon on Ag Hill for some old-fashioned head knocking. . . . Before it came off, however, Atlanta Norman King was informed he was back at right end. He had earlier been shifted to halfback from fullback. . . . End coach John Gregory, who looks for reinforcements at one of the Bulldogs' weakest spots, termed rising juniors Aaron Box, Jimmy Vickers and Gordon Kelly as "improving." He also had words of praise for junior college transfer Bill Heron and Ace Shamblin, a Trion product up from the "B" team.

'Yankee' Paints Georgia Industry

By HARRIETTE SCHREIBER
A "reconstructed Yankee" has been "brushing up" on Georgia industries. Artist Maggie Wesley, a native of Minnesota, has done a series of original paintings on Georgia industries to illustrate a calendar sent out by Lockheed.

In order to get her material, she took trips over the state and got her first real look at Georgia in the four years she has lived here.

"I fell in love with the state," said Mrs. Wesley, "and ended up out on a farm eating dinner down in south Georgia only to find that the wife is taking an art course."

SON IS MODEL

Mrs. Wesley, a widow, whose 9-year-old son, Martin, is used as a model in many of her pictures, has traveled throughout the United States. She worked in California doing posters for one aircraft firm and then was in New York doing free-lance book illustrations when she was offered the newly appointed post of institutional artist at Lockheed.

"When I returned to the North recently for a conference, I felt like breaking out my Confederate flags," she laughed.

"Although people everywhere are really alike down deep, there is a tremendous surface difference. The Georgians are so casual, warm and friendly that the abrupt mannerisms up North, though they really don't mean to be abrupt, are quite noticeable to me now."

CLEVER POSTERS

A vivacious little woman, Mrs. Wesley designs clever posters—such as the one of a sign painter painting a picture of a scantily clothed beauty with the caption "Enjoy Your Work"—and does the company's calendar each year.

The calendar, previously humorous drawings with safety captions, this year was done on Georgia industries and required eight months of research and painting before it was ready for the printers.

The research includes dozens of photographs taken by Mrs. Wesley so that her on-the-scene sketches could be completed with authenticity of detail back in her office.

12 PAINTINGS

The 12 paintings include watermelon, naval stores and tobacco scenes from around Valdosta, peach scene from Perry and Fort Valley, marble from Tate, the shrimp industry at Darien, the textile industry around Dalton, the chicken industry at Clarksville, a cotton scene around Cartersville and a paper mill at Savannah.

A graduate of the Minneapolis School of Art, she "borrows" techniques from various schools of art.

VAN GOGH STYLE

"For example," she explained, "the picture of the paper mill was done in the Van Gogh style because I thought it best showed the two outstanding characteristics—the smoke and odor—of the mill."

"And it is quite an experience when you go to the printers," she joked, "to look around you and see nothing but stacks of your paintings."

The company, impressed by her work, too, has had the original paintings framed and plated for display at the Georgia Press Institute.

Child Actors Win Awards

Members of the Children's Theater, junior branch of the Theater Guild of St. Thomas More, have been awarded certificates of merit by the guild.

Anita Tully Bergman, director, presented the certificates to 15 junior actors who have worked four consecutive years with the guild.

The youngsters who received recognition are Tommy and Billy Medcalf, Joan and Ann Galligan, Billy, Suzanne, Delores and Johnny Hopkins, Mary Muesle, Jimmy and Mary Esther Hickok, Barbara, Betsy and Cecilia Shook and Chuck Fowler.

Alumnae Group To Hold Buffet Supper

The Atlanta Alumnae of Alpha Xi Delta will meet at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 17, for a buffet supper at the home of Mrs. Forrest Coons, 4075 Rickenbacker Dr., N.E.

A feature of the meeting will be the annual white elephant sale which raises money for the sorority's national philanthropic project, among which is that for the rural child of America as originally outlined in the White House conference of 1950, and also the annual library award of 100 books to a tubercular hospital in the United States.

All newcomers who are members of the sorority are invited.

Reserve Assn. Plans Party

Members of the Greater Atlanta Chapter of the Reserve Officers Assn. of the United States will entertain at a George Washington birthday dinner-dance on Friday, Feb. 21.

The affair will be held at the Ft. McPherson Officers Club, with guests gathering at 7 p.m., followed by the dinner at 8, and dancing later.

Brig. Gen. deLesseps S. Morrison, national president of the Reserve Officers Assn. and mayor of New Orleans, will be guest speaker. Lt. Cmdr. Lloyd A. Sifford Jr. is taking reservations for the party.

VENT HOSTILITY

More Sinner Than Saint in Valentines

By MARY PRIME

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 (AP)—There may be more sinner than saint in Valentine's Day. The cards we send often mask hostility, selfishness, cynicism and fear.

So says Dr. Albert Ellis, a leading psychologist and author of a new book, "How To Live With a Neurotic."

This year Americans are expected to send more than 400 million Valentines, reported the Greeting Card Assn. Women account for close to 90 per cent of the sales.

We used to favor the poetic, lace-paper, and heart-type of card, said the association. Now we go for the flip type, such as one with this sentiment: "When they ask me what I see in you . . . what should I tell them?"

If you send or receive this type of greeting, take note. You may learn something about yourself, the sender, and how you feel about each other.

"Unconscious hostility often comes out in humorous cards. The sender wants to get in some real digs," said Ellis.

ANONYMOUS CARDS

"Anonymous cards also show hostility, especially if the card is a nasty one. This way a practical joker can vent his hostility without fear of reprisal."

"But people do choose humorous cards because they have a good sense of humor," the psychologist added.

Cards also show what we would like people to be, he said. If a man sends a sentimental card, he may wish his lady friend were more feminine, more sentimental or more responsive to him.

When a woman chooses a sentimental valentine, it's usually a projection of herself.

SENDER MAY BE SELFISH

If you're the out-and-out humorous type and you receive an extremely mushy card, chances are the sender is selfish because "the more self-centered a person is, the more he assumes the other person is like him," said Ellis.

Why do we send Valentines?

"Three reasons," said Ellis. "We're genuinely obsessed with or absorbed in the other person; it's the thing to do, the mode of conformity; or we're afraid not to because the other person will miss the greeting and we'll be in the soup."

Birthday Cake Shows Vicki's Age

Let's Go Marketing

It's Choice Time for Steak

By VIRGINIA DYSARD
Constitution Food Editor

Now's the time to reach into the frozen food counters and pull out pretty green vegetables.

Due to the freezing weather, fresh ones are on the scarce side and the prices are high.

Frozen and canned peas are perhaps one of the best buys in the stores. There is also an ample supply of green beans, corn, tomatoes and kraut all in the can. Now is a good time to stock up the pantry shelves or freezer with these processed vegetables.

LATER SEASON

There are a few fresh vegetables still left, but the last Florida freeze means even shorter supplies and a later season. Beans, cucumbers and peppers are among the high-priced ones, while lettuce, celery and carrots are more economical. Yellow onions and potatoes rate a spot on the food shopper's list, as do cauliflower and Brussels sprouts.

Even though weather has been bad in the production areas, grapefruit is an economical fruit buy. It is in its peak of supply right now and is also at its most flavorful, very sweet. Apples are excellent in quality and price, and so "an apple a day" is a good idea. Bananas are good choices and tasty. Rhubarb, for variety, is being offered at low prices. Two pounds will make a generous nine-inch pie.

"Let's have a steak." If that is the cry from the men of the house, this is about the best time to get one.

Choice beef prices are down slightly from last week, and some cuts are being featured in many Atlanta markets this week. Let the boys take their choice of sirloin, T-bone, or porterhouse steaks. Roasts, rib or chuck, or ground beef are also attractive. These prices will probably be low for some time to come. Other grades of beef remain about the same.

There is little change in pork prices, but keep an eye peeled for specials on Boston butts and sausage.

With Lent just around the corner you may be glad to know that eggs are low in price, and indications are that egg prices will continue that way. Eggs can be served in many ways for a combination of economy, good eating, and nutrition. They are especially popular when meatless meals are in demand.

"Turkey Time Is Any Time" is an industry slogan, but it rings pretty true since they are at such low prices that the homemaker can hardly afford to pass them up.

She Is Packed With Travel Tips

By BETTY CARROLLTON

The "first lady of touring" was introduced to Atlanta this week, and today she'll meet recipients of a coveted award named in her honor.

Miss Carol Lane, who as women's travel director of Shell Oil Co., covers the nation's highways and byways to ferret out new ideas to make touring a relaxing, carefree and worthwhile adventure, will address the Decatur Business and Professional Women's Club Thursday.

In 1956, the Decatur organization won the Carol Lane award for traffic safety, the nation's first and only award to recognize women's achievements toward the preservation of lives through traffic safety programs.

DRIVER TRAINING
The Decatur BPW was honored for inaugurating driver training classes in the high schools of DeKalb County. The organization received a $1,000 savings bond and a bronze sculpture symbolizing "woman's protective instinct."

"I'm looking forward to meeting all of these women," Miss Lane said.

Her job takes her to various sections of the country each year. She travels more than 60,000 miles, and after answering more than 10,000 requests annually from women vacationers concerning clothes, Miss Lane has come to one conclusion:

Most women inevitably take twice as many clothes as they use, but only half as many as they need.

TRAVEL WARDROBE

She tested numerous wardrobe combinations while doing research for her booklet, "Carol Lane's Vacation Dress-O-Graph," and came up with a near-perfect travel wardrobe.

The well-planned wardrobe is dirt-defiant. Neutral grays or medium-toned beiges—either as solid colors or as a background for prints—hide soil and are appropriate on either warm or cool days. The travel wardrobe is "color controlled"—limited to one dark color and tones of one bright color as contrast to the basic natural color.

ANY SITUATION

In her Vacation Dress-O-Graph, Miss Lane plans a simple, serviceable wardrobe that should suffice in any situation. An asset to any wardrobe is the Carol Lane travel hat, which is simple to make. (For directions, send stamped, self-addressed envelope to Hat Pattern, Women's Department, The Constitution.) The complete travel set includes a "car-tote" handbag, hat and cummerbund. The hat can be worn six different ways and is reversible, as are the bag and cummerbund.

PACKING CAN BE CHILD'S PLAY FOR WELL-PLANNED VACATION TRIP

Miss Lane has all the answers when it comes to carefree vacations: she checks road conditions, accommodations and recreation areas to get new ideas to make touring easier. She can demonstrate entertainingly how to pack a wrinkle-free wardrobe or how to plan a budget for any trip or to insure any maximum comfort and safety.

And she maintains that "Touring can be child's play," for those who travel with children.

Knitted Chemises Are Added To Silhouette Fashion Line

The chemise dress fashion has spread like wildfire not only through all fashion fields but through all countries as well.

Latest recruits to the chemise dress army are knitted chemises in both fine gauge wools and in the new heavy cotton knits. This silhouette seems particularly well adapted to knit fabrics as these have the requisite weight and body for its barely fitted cut. The smart fine gauge wool chemise dresses are imported from Italy, from which so many of our beautiful knitted fashions come, and the dresses themselves couldn't be simpler—with only a small open shirt collar to break the otherwise smooth line.

Miss Beverly Parker

Miss Parker To Marry Mr. Jones

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie L. Parker announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Beverly LaVerne Parker, to Thomas Frank Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Jones of Atlanta.

The wedding will take place at 8 o'clock on March 15 in the chapel of St. Mark Methodist Church, with the Rev. Richard Blount officiating.

Miss Parker is an honor graduate of Southwest DeKalb High school, where she was a member of the Beta Club and National Honor Society. She is employed by the City of Atlanta Water Department and is attending Georgia State College.

Mr. Jones, a graduate of North Fulton High School, is attending Georgia Tech. He and his bride will reside at their new home at 2907 Cloverleaf Dr., SE.

Auxiliary to Meet

The Georgia Baptist Hospital Auxiliary will meet Friday, Feb. 14, at 11 a.m. in Sheffield auditorium.

Annie Lou Hardy Robertsons to Sail For Native England

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Robertson are looking forward to a three-month visit to their native England—their first in four years. The pair sails on March 14 aboard the Parthia of the Cunard line.

"We have rented a cottage in Sussex which we will make our headquarters," enthused vivacious Mrs. Robertson, wife of Her Majesty's information officer at the British consulate here. "It is near the Cotswolds, Devonshire and Somerset and that, we think, is the prettiest part of England. I plan to visit my relatives while my husband is taking a course at the Foreign Office. Then we will have a month's leave and hope to visit Paris."

Several parties have already been planned as farewell gestures to the popular couple. The first is a dinner to be given on Feb. 20 by Mr. and Mrs. Redfern Hollins of Moore's Mill road, and next is a dinner at which Mrs. Clayton Cosse will be hostess on March 1. The Harold Cavenaughes have also planned a dinner at their Whitewater Creek road residence for March 8.

When the Robertsons return late in May, they will bring with them a British sports car, a Triumph Tr 3.

"It is said that when middle-aged people buy a sports car, they feel 10 years younger," laughed Mrs. Robertson. "We look forward to the rejuvenation."

THE FIRST PRENUPTIAL PARTY planned for Betty Brougham is that at which Mrs. Ben E. Gholston will be hostess on Thursday evening, Feb. 20, at her home on E. Paces Ferry road. Miss Brougham's marriage to Ronald B. Schoenhardt of Ft. Jackson, S.C., is scheduled for March 7.

ON FEB. 22 MRS. SHELLEY C. DAVIS of Atlanta will go to Auburn, Ala., to be guest speaker at a luncheon given by the Pan Hellenic Assn. of API as a feature of Greek Week Feb. 14 to Feb. 22.

Mrs. Davis is prominently identified with health organizations on local, regional and national levels. She is a former president of the Atlanta City Pan Hellenic and is Gamma Province president of Alpha Gamma Delta.

MRS. J. J. WOODSIDE JR. is at the Patuxent Naval Air Test Center, Md., to get acquainted with her new granddaughter born Feb. 5 to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Speegle. The baby has been named Susan Constance. Mrs. Speegle is the former Peggy Woodside. Mr. Woodside has just returned from Maryland.

SANDRA ATKINSON has invited 30 guests for dinner at her home on Laurel Forest circle on Friday evening. The affair will precede the Valentine dance to be given at the Driving Club by La Soiree, a dancing club of juniors at Northside and Westminster.

AFTER A BETWEEN-SEMESTERS visit to her parents, the Edward P. Leibolds of Millbrook drive, Miss Judy Leibold returned to the University of Alabama to learn that she had made the dean's list and was also chosen "Miss Bama Belle" last week by The Crimson Tide, campus news sheet.

Miss Leibold brought as her guest for the holiday her roommate, Miss Emily Erwin of Birmingham. Both girls are freshmen.

WORD HAS COME that a former Atlantan, Mrs. J. T. de Liesseline, who now makes her home at Rosehill, Vienna, will be included in the 1958 edition of International Who's Who in Poetry, published by the Cranbrook Tower Press of London.

Mrs. de Liesseline is author of a book of poems dedicated to her mother, and has had poems published in such magazines as Good Housekeeping, Progressive Farmer, Literary America, and the Westminster Magazine. She was also included in the American States Anthology of 1936.

In addition to her poetry-writing, Mrs. de Liesseline is a gifted musician, composer and lecturer. She wrote both the words and music to "Lovelight and a Prayer."

HOSPITAL NOTES—The Rev. C. R. McCutcheon, pastor of the Baptist Church of Greenville, is a patient at Georgia Baptist Hospital where he underwent surgery on Tuesday. He will return to Greenville in two weeks.

JUST BACK FROM FLORIDA are Mr. and Mrs. John O. Gaultney who vacationed for a week at the Hollywood Beach Hotel in Hollywood, and stopped in St. Augustine en route home.

Wedding Guests To Arrive

Guests will begin arriving today from a distance for the marriage of Miss Virginia Barrett to James Monroe Barker IV of Jacksonville which will be solemnized Saturday evening at St. Luke's Episcopal Church.

Heading the list are the future bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Barker of Jacksonville, and his grandmother, Mrs. C. S. Strickler of Salem, Va. Other guests from Jacksonville will be Mrs. James A. Meehan, Mrs. Jack R. Horton, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Koger and Dr. and Mrs. O. E. Harrell.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McLamb and their daughter, Margaret, will come from Savannah and will be joined here by another daughter, Martha, who is in school in Mexico City. Mr. and Mrs. George B. Delaplaine and their son, Bucky, will arrive from Frederick, Md., and Miss Jane Winston Carpenter from Fredericksburg, Va.

Coming from Athens are Donald Lamar Davis and Mr. and Mrs. James Russell, and from Memphis, Mr. and Mrs. William N. Hulsey and Mr. and Mrs. Ted I. Lewis.

Other wedding guests will include Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Howard Jr. and their daughter, Carol, of Augusta; Miss Charlotte Dillingham of Charleston, Mrs. William B. Mathews and her granddaughter, Miss Anita Hamilton of Long Island, N.Y.

New Look At Jekyll

The analogy may not appeal to some but I couldn't help being delighted with what one of the legislators said about Jekyll Island last week.

"Man, look at this!" he cried as he beheld the ground clearing and the building that are going on. "Reminds me of an old-fashioned cemetery working!"

In a way it does. The baby in the chain of the Golden Isles has been unwanted and neglected in some quarters. And now it's blooming with miles of new roads, picnic areas, bath houses, beaches and parking areas. By summer the ocean side of the island will have two and maybe more motels that are the last word in luxury, including suites with glass doors opening out on the beach and, of all things, a swimming pool!

Members of the General Assembly were so pleased with the way things are going on Jekyll under the present island authority they passed a resolution this week praising them. Now it seems that citizens of Georgia can rest easy about the future of this pearl among state properties. There's every indication that it's going to be developed to afford a maximum of pleasure to the maximum number of citizens without sacrificing the flavor and the charm of the old.

Occasionally some of the millionaire ex-owners of Jekyll come back and from all accounts they are surprised and delighted with how the once-exclusive playground has flourished under public ownership.

Mrs. Ann English, who is responsible for so much of the homey charm and hospitality at the Jekyll Island hotel, told me that a few weeks ago an elderly woman drove up in a jeep and checked in the hotel. She looked about the place curiously and then the hotel force saw her eyes were filled with tears.

The daughter of a New York millionaire, she had come to Jekyll on her honeymoon many years ago. The day she returned she had just come from her husband's funeral.

"She stayed with us several days," Mrs. English said, "and she seemed to enjoy it. I was afraid she would be sad for the old days but she told us she was pleasantly surprised to find the island flourishing this way."

Mrs. Tallu Fish, the curator of the museum and one of the funniest museum keepers in America, has developed friendships with several of the previous owners who are delighted with her interest in the past and her desire to preserve relics of their day.

The reason I say Mrs. Fish is a funny museum keeper is that she has the zeal for the job without any delusions about what she has to offer there in William Rockefeller's former 15-room "cottage." She works hard to present in books, pictures, old furniture and other relics a picture of the days of Jekyll's grandeur. So far the state hasn't been able to give her much of a hand but Mrs. Fish hangs on, telling the tourists tales of the other days, exhibiting the plush and wicker decor with wit and humor, and looking forward to the day when she will have a little money to clean up and completely restore the old house, catalogue and properly shelve the old club records and reports and assemble really fine exhibits.

She doesn't think she has such a hot museum now. But she makes a visit to it a must for tourists anyhow.

"Be sure and sit in that monstrosity in there," she tells visitors, pointing out a hideous, ornately carved ebony chair valued at $5,000. "It took a Chinese 27 years to carve it at the wage scale of three cents a day. If you sit in it your wish will come true."

Members of the Legislature went docilely to sit in the chair and laughed sheepishly when Mrs. Fish added practically: "That's a good story about wishes coming true, isn't it? I think so because I made it up myself."

Extra Chicken* for Baby's Pleasure

NEW Gerber's
Dinner

A savory specialty that's brimming with chicken-y goodness. This exclusive Gerber Chicken and Vegetable Dinner has *3 times as much chicken and therefore much more protein than regular Vegetable and Meat Combinations. And all this delicate chicken is mixed with selected vegetables and cereal for brighter flavor and varied nutritional value.

Hundreds of mothers and babies tested the new Gerber's High Meat Dinners and were delighted with the rich meaty flavor. And with all this nourishing goodness in one main dish, it's economical to serve. Other Gerber's High Meat Dinners: Beef or Veal—both prepared with flavor-fresh vegetables.

THE NEW CHANDLER'S
187 PEACHTREE STREET

An Idea born in Atlanta . . . Chandler's has become the nation's most fabulous group of shoe salons. More than a shoe store, the first Chandler's on Whitehall Street in Atlanta opened in 1922 as the expression of a dream . . . an idea of a shoe store that would offer luxury footwear in a fashionable setting at reasonable prices. The five Atlanta Edison brothers pooled their talents and their capital and were an immediate success . . . proving the wisdom of Atlantans, both as merchants and as shoppers. Filled with the vision of the new way to operate a fashion shoe business, the Edison brothers sent members of the Atlanta staff to open and operate Chandler's in New Orleans, then Birmingham, Memphis and San Antonio. In city after city success followed success. Through the roaring twenties, as shorter skirts focused eyes on shoes as important fashion accessories, expansion continued into Kansas City, Houston, and Tulsa. The thirties saw further acceptance of Chandler's and new stores were added in Dallas, Portland, Cleveland, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Washington, D. C. War years brought an increase in Chandler's sales as wise shoppers invested their ration coupons in Chandler's fashion and quality. Though Chandler's shoe salons now are favorites of smart women in almost every principal city in the nation, it is to you, the fashion-wise women of Atlanta, that we pay tribute as we unveil our beautiful new shoe salon!

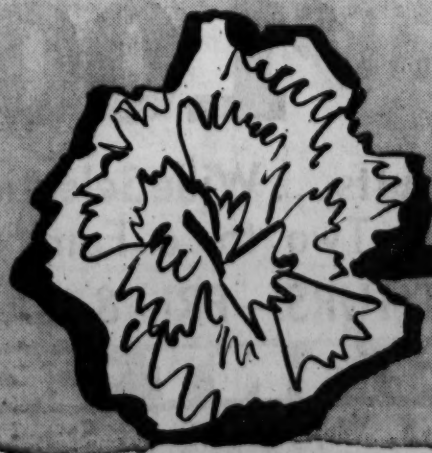

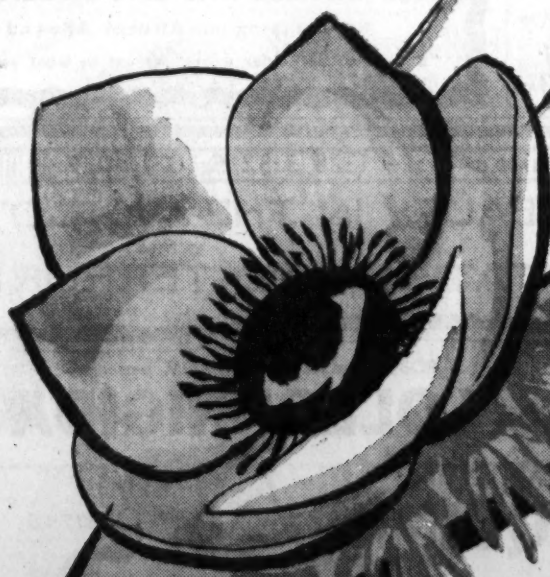

French Room Originals, exciting Spring fashions exclusively Chandler's! Exquisitely detailed: vibrant suedes, florals, silks, matte calf, patent leathers. Come revel in Springtime!

Lavish Ice Show Opens Tonight

Holiday On Ice, the biggest single show to play Atlanta each year, opens Thursday to reveal one of the most lavish and colorful productions ever offered at the Municipal Auditorium.

Starring in the 1958 version of the frosted spectacle will be Dorothy Goos and Murray Galbraith, who are returning with Holiday On Ice after an absence of more than nine years.

Dorothy and Murray, known as "The Sweethearts of the Ice," will be featured in several of the big show's riotous production numbers, especially the "Aladdin and His Magic Lamp" scene which spotlights colorful costumes and imaginative staging effects.

Among the top numbers in this show are the "Alice in Toyland," "Blue Suede Shoes" and the "Waterama" productions. All of these big scenes incorporate music, ballet and comedy.

Comedy will be handled by Paul Andre who has appeared in many sailor skits and the Shaller Brothers, acrobatic team.

A Rhyme a Day

"Bull-fighting, prohibited in our country because of its cruelty, has a deep symbolism for the aficionados of the sport which we do not fully understand."—Sports article quote.

Bull-fighting is an ancient sport... the members of The Royal Court... (when royalty was at its crest)... considered it among the best... The bull ring is no place for steers... or cows, but when the bull appears... the crowd stands up and cheers for it... as we do for a three-base hit.

A fellow called a "matador"... or some such name is waiting for... the bull to charge; he has a sword... to stab the bull before he's gored... There is a fence around the ring... which is a most convenient thing... so when the man is pressed too hard... he jumps into another yard... and if he fails to clear the fence... there is a series of events... the matador does not enjoy... and they must "get another boy."

What makes the brave bull brave? I know... he is a "ham" and wants to show... how he can act, he loves applause... which, in itself, has been the cause... of trouble for a lot of men... who were the "big bulls" in the pen... and shoved the others from the trough... That's what they get for "showing off."

Opening lead: King of diamonds.
In tournament play where each deal represents a separate contest, strange risks are at times taken by a contestant determined to obtain the best possible result.
In trying for a two trick set, East resorted to daring tactics in the defense of today's hand, but his strategy boomeranged.

At all tables the four-heart contract was reached. West opened the king of diamonds and in response to his partner's signal continued with the ace and a small one which was ruffed.

A one trick set could be recorded merely by laying down the ace of spades, but East was not satisfied with a 100-point set which appeared to be quite normal. Such action would probably result in an average result, for it was reasonable to assume that the other North-South pairs would also reach a game contract and be set one trick.

That South held the king of spades was likely, but if West could be found with the queen of spades there was a chance to beat the contract two tricks. East therefore returned a low spade. South won with the king and extracted trump.

Declarer now realized that the defense had given him a chance to bring home his contract. If West had the king of clubs, a finesse in that suit would permit declarer to dispose of his spade loser on the ace of clubs.

However, South decided to play

Planning Board Okays 6 Pleas

The joint Atlanta-Fulton County planning board Wednesday approved six petitions, turned down three and held two others for further study.

Advised were measures affecting sites on Elizabeth street, NE, and Lake avenue, NE; Moreland avenue, SE, near East Fair street, and on Bankhead highway, NW, and the perimeter highway. Held were proposals for sites on Harwell road beginning at the south line of land lot 260, 17th district of Fulton County, and Gordon road, SW, at the east line of land lot 14 of the 14th district of Fulton County. All other petitions were approved.

Arboreal Shanghai

HONG KONG, Feb. 12 (AP)—There'll be almost as many trees as people in Shanghai if a 1958 tree-planting program announced by Radio Peiping is carried out. The broadcast said six million trees will be planted this year to beautify Shanghai, Red China's largest city. The population is seven million.

Teachers Plan Fete For 1,000

More than 1,000 persons are expected to attend the 52nd annual dinner of the Atlanta Public School Teachers Assn. at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Atlanta Biltmore Hotel.

The Derthick brothers—Roger, association president and principal of Henry Grady High School, and Lawrence, U.S. commissioner of education—will occupy the spotlight at the observance.

President Derthick will preside and Dr. Lawrence Derthick will make the major address.

Roger Derthick said Wednesday that an estimated half of the 2,000 members of the association are scheduled to attend and that some 100 guests have been invited including members of the board of education, business, civic and educational leaders.

Dr. Derthick is a former superintendent of Chattanooga schools, and among other important assignments served as head of the educational branch of occupation forces in Germany and is a former president of the American Association of Public School Administrators.

Guests Wearing Out The Welcome Mat

By PAUL JONES

Some stars are certainly wearing out this guest star routine.

Have you noticed how, recently, some screen stars have begun making the rounds of the television shows, appearing on first one and then another show until you get tired of seeing them around.

Some of them can almost be categorized as "professional guest stars."

In recent weeks, I have noticed that Ginger Rogers, Cesar Romero, Minnie Pearl and Frank Sinatra have been giving the old welcome mat a rough time with their frequent appearances as guest stars.

But, the gal who had done more visiting around than anybody else is that Italian cutie, Gina Lollobrigida, who hasn't turned down a guest spot since she has been in this country.

Now it stands to reason that Gina is a ball of fire at the box office and any guy with a TV show and a limp Trendex rating would be foolish if he didn't try to get Gina to come over and help him entertain the folks at home.

But after seeing Gina on Ed Murrow's show last Friday, on Ed Sullivan's show Sunday night, on I've Got a Secret Wednesday night, I'm just thinking about passing her up when she appears on Pat Boone's show Thursday night.

I never thought it would happen, but, I'm getting tired of looking at Miss Lollobrigida on television anyway.

NEXT TO THE WESTERN the most used—and abused—plot in the movies is the one which depicts a bunch of hapless passengers on a crippled airliner.

Some truly great movies have been developed along that line. Still others which didn't rate a date in even the action-movie houses have been turned out in great numbers.

It will be interesting to see what Playhouse 90 does with the old plot in its presentation "No Time At All," Thursday night at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 5. The story's about a night flight from Miami to New York. The airliner develops electrical trouble. You can take it from there.

Bill Lundigan and Jane Greer will be two of the most conspicuous people on the plane.

PLAYHOUSE 90, incidentally, has just signed Andy Griffith, star of "No Time for Sergeants," for the starring role in "The Male Animal."

"The Male Animal" opened on Broadway Jan. 9, 1940, and ran for nearly 200 performances with Elliott Nugent in the role of Prof. Turner. The comedy-drama deals with a college professor's reply to a challenge against his right to teach and what he pleases. This is complicated by domestic difficulties which descend upon him at a crucial time. Vincent Donahue is returning from New York to Hollywood to direct "The Male Animal" after successfully launching the Broadway production of "Sunrise at Campobello," which looms as one of the biggest hits in several seasons.

This, likewise, will provide an interesting challenge for Playhouse 90.

MRS. D.L.C. OF CHAMBLEE writes: "This is the first letter I've written you, but just want to tell you I heartily agree with your opinion about the 'unhappy' faces of the teen-agers on Bandstand."

"I like the program—watch it along with my children—but I have remarked several times about the sad expressions. Never a smile appears. Why? Certainly when I was young and went to high school dances there was plenty of laughter—too much, in fact. Why don't these children ever smile when they dance? Is it such hard work that they haven't the time? I wish someone had the answer. I'd like to know."

'End of the Rainbow' Fading Out of TV Sky

By VAL ADAMS

(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.) NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Ralph Edwards has found there is no pot of gold at the "End of the Rainbow." The television show he packages under that title will terminate Saturday after a run of six performances. (Rainbow's next-to-the-last program originated last Saturday in Atlanta when a Jonesboro couple received a large number of gifts for their home and farm.)

"End of the Rainbow," which made its debut Jan. 11, has been presented over NBC network Saturdays from 10 to 10:30 p.m.

The network describes the program as one on which persons are "given an opportunity to realize a lifetime ambition, regain a sound footing in business or be provided with an unexpected opportunity for success."

Art Baker began as master of ceremonies for "End of the Rainbow" but asked to be relieved after three performances, according to NBC. He was succeeded on the fourth show by Bob Barker.

Pharmaceuticals, Inc., sponsor of the series, will retain the time period for another program. The network said the revival of a former program series was under consideration as a replacement for "End of the Rainbow."

Unchained Goddess Too Syrupy for Adults

By JACK GOULD

(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.) NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—"The Unchained Goddess," seen tonight on television, was another installment in the interesting science series presented by the Bell Telephone System. The program was an examination of the causes and effects of weather and in its limited approach consistently informative.

Frank Capra, producer of the science series, once again employed Dr. Frank Baxter (played by Dr. Research) and Richard Carlson (playing the fiction writer) in a conversation with animated cartoon figures.

But in this picture Mr. Capra seemed handicapped by a familiar TV dilemma: What is the age group of the audience to which he is playing? For youngsters still in grammar school "The Unchained Goddess" was probably most helpful.

But for adult viewers much of the sugar-coating dialogue was superfluous and contrived.

Here's to you, brother, if you're a Bourbon Man

The Bourbon Man knows that if a whisky is genuine bourbon, it has to say bourbon on the label.

This is bourbon at its best. Virile. Robust. Smooth—the way you wish all bourbons were. These are not just words—the proof is in every barrel. Every bottle. Every glass. Extra years enrich Old Hickory's great bourbon flavor. Takes longer for us to make, but worth it in the added pleasure you get.

British Expect Big Savings on Atom Defenses

LONDON, Feb. 12 (AP)—Britain will cut its defense bill in the coming fiscal year in the process of converting armed forces to nuclear-age needs, a government source reported today.

The informant said savings may be as much as 280 million dollars, about seven per cent of the current year's defense bill.

The planned cuts have been made possible partly by American help envisaged under an imminent agreement for setting up four bases here for 1,500-mile missiles. U.S. rockets with nuclear warheads will be supplied free while Britain will pay for the bases which will cost about 90 million dollars.

is pleased to announce the

of an exclusive downtown dealership for the beautiful French ECONOMY car

THE RENAULT

Our company has made the decision to go "all the way" with this beautiful economy car. It has become increasingly evident that the car-buying public is FED UP with extremely high monthly payments, high depreciation rates, high gasoline consumption, high insurance rates, and high, high maintenance rates! We are convinced that most people now realize that it makes sense to buy a low-priced, smartly styled car that will keep its value and continue to have acceptable styling year after year! The RENAULT meets these tests!

RENAULT

Advantages of Owning a Renault

1. HIGH GASOLINE MILEAGE—49.7 miles with steady driving 38.0 miles per gallon under 60 mph 36.5 mpg with hard driving
2. PLENTY OF SPEED—74.5 mph average in test conducted by Sports Car Illustrated
3. RIDING COMFORT—a test ride will convince you
4. YOU CAN buy a brand-new car for low, low monthly payments—36 months available!
5. YOU CAN take your family and friends—room for 5 big people
6. FOUR BIG DOORS—you don't break your neck getting in.
7. EXCELLENT VISIBILITY
8. LOW, LOW maintenance costs—says Motor Trend Magazine—"if there ever was a car that will pay for itself this is it. Maintenance expenses should be lower than on any car we know of"
9. Ready availability of parts and service
10. Water-cooled engine for efficient, quiet, longer life

Pickets Started Before His Suit, Says Employer

John L. Parks, owner of the Parks Printing Co., 16 Mangum St., NW, said picketing of his firm had started in April 1955, before the company filed a damage suit in federal court against the Atlanta Printing Pressmen and Associates Local No. 8. It was reported previously that the picketing, halted last week by Fulton Superior Court order, had started after the filing of the damage suit. Parks said picketing began April 13, 1955, and the suit was filed May 5, 1955.

KEEP WELL: TB-Ridden Skid Row Spreads Contagion Everywhere

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

Our defense against disease is as strong as the weakest link. A Minneapolis survey reports that tuberculosis was 55 times greater among occupants of skid row than among city residents. These are the men who take temporary jobs around town. Many are food handlers, cooks' helpers and dishwashers.

They mingle with the public in depots, subways and stores. In

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
Most men do not die—they kill themselves.

In this respect, they are in a better position to transmit infection to the general population than men with more substantial jobs.

in the chain of defense against tuberculosis by constituting a primary source of reinfection.

It has been estimated that one-third of all tuberculosis patients confined to a sanatorium leave against medical advice. One-half of this group are said to be infectious and not only jeopardize their own health but spread disease to others.

These persons leave the institution for various reasons, but in most instances the cause is emotional. Psychic problems begin the moment the diagnosis of tuberculosis is made. This malady carries a stigma that is difficult to overcome. It threatens the very existence of the individual and demands a complete readjustment in living.

Inmates of a sanatorium must learn to control the hostility and accept all the rules and regulations without question. The manner in which the sufferer takes his adversity depends in part upon his upbringing and mental fiber. The doctor-nurse-patient relationship will be strained at some time during the stay and the longer the individual is in the sanatorium the more likely he is to go AWOL. Recalcitrant patients are the toughest to handle. Many belong to the skid row group and are alcoholics, lonesome oldsters, wanderers, or psychotics.

They are too resistant, obstinate and defiant to cooperate, which sets up a barrier that hinders treatment. All this has a disturbing influence upon the morale of the other patients.

Many of these stubborn persons have basic emotional problems that make them behave in this way. They are firm believers in "I" rather than "we." This background, plus an illness like tuberculosis, adds to their insecurity.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions relating to health and hygiene in his column, and by mail when self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Letters should be addressed to Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen, c/o The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta 2, Ga.

THE SWEETEST BACON EAST OF I-OWAY

It's real corn-fed bacon. From the heart of Iowa. With a rich, sweet, corn-fed flavor.

That's Rath Black Hawk Bacon!

It's sugar-cured the take-your-time Iowa way. And smoked over fragrant hickory. But delicately. This is extraordinary bacon. Very lean. Very sweet.

...very good!

Finally! A Hickory-Smoked Ham in a Can!

Unlike ordinary canned hams which are not smoked, these corn-fed hams mellow in our smokehouse. That's why they have the flavor, the fragrance only smoking gives.
